NEW PROPOSAL TO CONSCRIPT WAR INDUSTRY

Senator Pepper Offers Plan as Means of Speeding Up Defense Production.

DRAFT VOTE URGED

Leader Barkley Says Public Expects Decision Over Compulsory Service.

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON—A fresh proposal for conscription of war industries was put forward today after the senate had been told that the people looked to it for definite action soon on the controversial Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military service bill.

The new "draft industry" suggestion came from Senator Pepper (D-Fla.), who offered it as a means of ending delays on defense orders, and also eliminating excess profits on war materials.

Pepper informed reporters that he would seek to have the Burke-Wadsworth bill amended accordingly. The move indicated a further extension of the debate, because several senators have demanded action against firms refusing army and navy contracts on account of the limited profits permitted by law.

Despite the uncertain outlook, Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) pressed for a final vote on compulsory military service on Friday. The bill was introduced June 20, and debate opened Aug. 9.

"The time is approaching when the American people expect us to pass upon this one way or the other," Barkley told the senate.

"We have had nearly two weeks of debate now and think most of that has been legitimate."

Barkley warned that he would ask an unusual Saturday session if a final vote was not reached by Friday.

Describing his "draft industry" ideas, Pepper said the amendment he planned would permit the government to take over factories whenever failure to reach an agreement on terms had delayed acceptance and execution of vital defense contracts.

The procedure would involve assumption by the government of a majority stock interest in the manufacturing company at a fair price and continuance of operations by private individuals.

Senator Russell (D-Ga.) already has offered an amendment to a pending $5,000,000,000 defense appropriations measure which would authorize the government to commandeer war industries if contracts were being

ALL-TIME LOW

Mercury Skids to 37; City's Second Coldest on Map.

Maybe it didn't seem as cold last night, but the mercury dropped to 37 degrees in Mansfield, one degree under the preceding night's reading, to equal the all-time low for August.

Only one place on the weather map—Winnipeg, Canada, one of the continent's cold spots—reported a lower official reading than Mansfield. It was 35 above there.

The weatherman forecast an end to the summer cool wave today, predicting showers and rising temperatures tonight, with cloudy and slightly cooler weather due again Friday. The mercury climbed rapidly today, despite an overcast sky, and the reading at noon was 73. Average for the past 24 hours was 56, nearly 11 degrees below normal.

Hospital to Offer Group Care Plan

Trustees OK System of Small Payments By Small Groups.

A group hospitalization plan for Mansfield residents was adopted by the Mansfield General Hospital board of trustees, at a meeting at the hospital last night.

The plan, according to Superintendent A. O. Fonkalsrud, would enable groups of citizens to band together in groups of three or five and pay toward a fund that would assure them of 21 days of free hospitalization in case of illness.

Dr. Fonkalsrud said that each member who subscribed to the plan would pay 65 cents a month for ward care and 75 cents a month for a private room.

For each year a member subscribes to the fund, the length of time a patient may have use of the hospital without further charge increases until it reaches the 31-day mark, he said.

Hospital authorities stated that a study of the plan was being made and that it would be made available to Mansfielders as soon as details have been worked out.

The plan, which has been under discussion here for some time, has been successfully operated in larger cities for a number of years, but Mansfield will be among the first of the smaller cities to adopt the plan. At present there are 4,000,000 subscribers to the plan throughout the United States.

Dr. Fonkalsrud also reported at the meeting last night that an average of 103 patients per day for July had received treatment at the hospital, with the total cared for during the month reaching 475.

He also reported 76 babies born during the month at the hospital and 47 accident cases treated, he said.

The board decided to pay $4,362.53 to Bauer Brothers, as contracted, for work on the new addition to the hospital.

SENT TO O. S. R. FOR ASSAULT

Man Found Guilty of Criminal Attack on 16-Year-Old Gets 3 to 20 Years.

Found guilty by a jury late yesterday of criminally assaulting a 16-year-old Mansfield school girl, James D. Foster, 24, of 136 Hammond avenue, was sentenced to three to 20 years in the Mansfield reformatory by Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston.

A jury of 10 men and two women deliberated two hours before returning a verdict. Judge Huston passed sentence immediately. Eleven witnesses, including six for the state and five for the defendant, were examined during the trial which lasted about five hours.

Foster admitted taking the girl, a John Simpson junior high school pupil, and her 18-year-old companion on a ride to Lake Erie and having intimate relations with the younger girl after parking his car on a lonely road east of Mansfield. He denied, however, that he attacked the girl.

The girl testified that she ripped the sleeve of Foster's shirt

POSED AS 'ADMIRER'

Bolshevik's Associates Say Soviet Secret Police Engineered Attack.

(By Associated Press) MEXICO CITY—Police Commander Jesus Galindo said today the pickax assassination of Leon Trotsky "has the aspects of an international plot." He did not elaborate.

Trotsky, genius of the Bolshevik revolution, died last night in police hospital. The former Russian war commissar had been exiled from Russia in 1929, and a refugee in Mexico since Jan. 9, 1937.

Trotsky's brain was pierced by a pickax wielded by Frank Jackson, who for months posed as a "great admirer" of the chief of the fourth international.

Jackson beaten by guards, was taken to the same hospital where Trotsky died.

Trotsky's associates, and Trotsky himself, charged Josef Stalin, head of the Soviet Union and long-time political foe of Trotsky, and the OGPU Russian secret police, with responsibility for the second assault on Trotsky within three months. May 24 he escaped harm in a machine gun attack for which more than 20 Mexicans were arrested.

Jackson confessed immediately after the assault Tuesday night, but police resumed their questioning.

In his first statement Jackson said he decided to kill Trotsky after being "disillusioned" by the Russian's recently expressed political views. Police said they would publish his latest statement, perhaps tomorrow. They added that Jackson was not a Belgian.

Richland G. O. P. Calls Session To Form County Willkie Group

Richland county Republican workers and voters will be called into session Tuesday night at G. O. P. headquarters on North Main street to organize a Willkie-Bricker-Burton club, Ralph Hardy, county G. O. P. executive chairman, said today.

While Hardy said the organization move is in line with campaign activities in other parts of the state, he indicated that it will also be aimed at a reported attempt of Martin L. Davey, Democratic candidate for governor, to tie up with Wendell Willkie, the G. O. P. presidential candidate, in the Ohio campaign.

It has been rumored that Davey might try to link himself with Willkie in Ohio, Hardy said.

"This new club, which will be open to anyone, will be sponsored by the county Republican organization. It doesn't mean that the executive committee is not wholeheartedly backing other state and county candidates as well," Hardy asserted.

It is expected that officers will be elected and a campaign program will be formulated at the meeting.

Hardy added that membership in the club will be free and voluntary and that it will in no way interfere with the united campaign in behalf of the county and state G. O. P. tickets.

Trotsky on Deathbed, His Killer

Fatally injured when he was attacked by an associate wielding a pickax, Leon Trotsky, moving spirit of the 1917 Russian Bolshevik revolution, is shown, top, in a Central Press photograph as he lay in a Mexico City hospital shortly before he died. The slayer, identified as Frank Jackson, is shown, bottom, as he lay in a bed in the same hospital after being beaten by Trotsky's bodyguards. Before he died, the Russian revolutionist charged that Jackson had been sent to kill him by the O. G. P. U., the Russian secret police, organization of Joseph Stalin, who exiled Trotsky after a bitter struggle for control of the Soviet government.

WPA REJECTS WIDENING JOB

Tells City It Can't Furnish Labor on Project Urged By Traffic Group.

The city's hope of enlisting WPA aid in a streets widening project before the end of the year vanished today when Mayor W. J. Locke was notified that there are already more men in Richland county on WPA than its quota and no further work can be considered before Jan. 1.

The communication was in reply to Locke's application for aid in carrying out the recommendation contained in the recent survey made by the Citizens Traffic committee, that several streets be widened. Included in the recommendations were the north and south sides of Central park and North Walnut street.

Locke said today it was impossible for the city to do the work and finance it without WPA aid at this time, since the cost of financing such a project would be prohibitive at this time.

J. L. Kelly, Columbus, district manager of WPA projects, informed Locke that Richland county had no more work available.

CONFEREES TO IRON OUT AIR BASE PROBLEM

Roosevelt Discusses Aspects of British Leases With High Officials.

ANNOUNCEMENT WAITED

Plan of Hemisphere Defense Reported Nearly Ready For Joint Action.

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt summoned top military, foreign and legal officials today to a conference on the acquisition of western hemisphere naval and air bases from Great Britain.

Called to the meeting were Secretaries Stimson and Knox, Attorney General Jackson and Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state. Stephen Early, White House press secretary, said their discussion with Mr. Roosevelt would follow up, and perhaps conclude, an initial conference which the same group held yesterday on legal aspects of the base negotiations.

"Afterward the president hopes to be able to make some announcement to you," Early told reporters.

Asked whether the meeting would also involve the proposed sale of United States destroyers to Britain, the press secretary said he did not know.

Meanwhile, new hemisphere defense plans for organization of a joint U. S.-Canadian defense board and acquisition of military bases in British possessions were reported all but complete.

President Roosevelt, returning to the capital from New York where he reached a broad defense agreement with Canadian Prime Minister MacKenzie King, said he hoped to make public today the names of the American members of the strategy board and set them to work immediately on plans for improving defense.

At the capital, however, Senator La Follette (Prog., Wis.) demanded that the public be informed of current negotiations with the British empire. His demand followed unofficial reports from London, denied today, that Britain might seek a military alliance with the United States.

La Follette told reporters that he recognized the necessity of secrecy in negotiations such as those in progress with Canada, but he thought that any plans for military commitments should be revealed.

"If there are any military or naval obligations being undertaken which the people of this country are going to be asked to underwrite, the people ought to know about it," he declared.

Admits Murdering 'Good Girl' After Seduction Fails

NEW YORK (AP)—Police announced early today that Peter Salemi, 32, a longshoreman, had confessed that he murdered 19-year-old Frieda Olsen, "a good girl" in a lovers' lane in Brooklyn Borough Monday night after an unsuccessful, two-hour attempt to seduce her.

"I did it because she objected to my advances," Salemi was quoted by Brooklyn's District Attorney William O'Dwyer, who questioned him all night.

He said he beat the girl to death with a stone, with which he previously had knocked her down when she ran from his automobile, and that he siphoned gasoline from the car, poured it on her body and set it afire.

Miss Olsen's body, partially burned, was found yesterday morning by two boys. Salemi was taken for questioning a few hours later. A resident of the neighborhood of the murder had heard screams Monday night and had potted down the license number of an automobile leaving the place. Salemi was traced through the license and police disclosed that samples of dried blood taken from his shoes and from beneath his finger nails had been matched with samples of Miss Olsen's blood.

Artillery On French Coast Attacks Ships

Dive-Bombers Also Used But British Escape Unharmed; Claim 1,000 German Planes Shot Down In Air Blitzkrieg.

(By Associated Press) LONDON—Heavy German artillery opened up from concealed positions on the French coast from Boulogne to Calais and German dive bombers went into action today against a long British convoy threatening the English channel off Dover.

The convoy escaped without damage from the artillery fire through a smoke screen, despite churning of the waters by about 100 shells from the distant French shore. It was later attacked by the dive bombers, one of which was shot down.

The loss brought to an even 1,000 the number of Nazi planes which Britain counts as certainly destroyed since Adolf Hitler's intensive war about the British Isles was launched June 18.

Earlier three German air machines had attacked a convoy off the northeast coast, dropping several bombs but without apparent damage as Spitfires gave chase.

These were the first attacks on convoys off the east coast in several days.

Apparently the British were resuming the use of the channel for shipping during the three-day breathing spell this week in the intensive air war instituted Aug. 8.

While some Britons exulted that the lull was a sign the Royal Air Force had shot the "blitz out of blitzkrieg," others expressed doubt, and Air Secretary Sir Archibald Sinclair was on record with a warning that the Germans had used up "only a small fraction" of their heavy bombers and that further massed attacks and possibly invasion are yet to be expected.

The 999th Nazi plane shot down since Hitler loosed his air force in daily raids against England June 18 was accounted for last night by an American-built Hudson dive bomber off Denmark. It fought single-handed seven German fighting planes and brought down one of them, escaping with its own landing gear and fuselage riddled.

Scattered raids by crews flying singly or in twos and three continued today, but the air ministry said they were "very few and on a small scale."

A soldier was killed when three or four bombs were scattered on a Scottish hillside. Some houses were wrecked.

A single plane dropped nine shrieking bombs on a southeast coastal town, doing some damage to houses and backyards. Yet other planes were over Wales.

Gas and water mains in another southeast town were damaged and a railway line farther inland was blocked for a short time in night raids.

(Berlin said massed raids had been suspended because of unfavorable flying weather; Britain acknowledged the existence of bad weather across the channel in giving it as the reason for a slackening in British attacks on German-held regions.)

Pictures of scrap heaps of German bombers brought down here bolstered the people's confidence. The Mirror captioned one of these pictures "Hitler's Junk-ers Yard," with the letters "JUNK" in capitals.

"It is possible," the News Chronicle cautioned, "that Goering is using this lull to plan some new form of attack—perhaps on a still larger scale—which may break over us in the next few hours, or days."

The usual night forays continued last night and were notable for the dropping of an aerial torpedo on a row of houses in a southeast coast town. The torpedo exploded with a blast which shook the whole town.

SHAKE-UP: Japanese Recall Ambassador to United States

(By Associated Press) TOKYO—Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka has recalled Kensuke Horinouchi, ambassador to the United States, and four other ambassadors in a sweeping shakeup of the diplomatic service. Dorei, the authoritative Japanese news agency, reported today.

Yoshikazu Aikawa, one of Japan's outstanding industrialists and head of the great Manchuria Industrial Development corporation, was said in informed quarters to be a likely choice as Horinouchi's successor.

Dorei said 19 ministers and 16 holders of important consular posts also were being recalled in the shakeup, which affects the foreign service in the Americas more than any other part of the world.

Dorei said sweeping changes, which had been expected ever since the energetic Matsuoka became foreign minister, were considered preparatory to a "diplomatic offensive." Matsuoka has said he will make Japan's diplomacy free from "toadyism."

CRIME: Nazis Say Promise Of Safety to Ships Futile

(By United Press) BERLIN—Competent quarters, commenting on the alteration of the United States neutrality law to permit American ships to take British and other war children to safe homes, stated today that it would be a "crime against humanity for Germany to ship."

The spokesman said, "The new law is based on the assumption of the guarantee of safe passage by warring powers. The Reich government already in the case of the (army transport) American Legion pointed out the infestation of the sea around England with mines. A mere guarantee, which in the present situation would not be workable, would be a crime against the children to be transported of which the Reich government does not wish to make itself a party."

"After the American neutrality law excluded the possibility of incidents which might lead to conflict and worked for best relations between Germany and

BUC LISTS DROP IN CLAIMS FOR JOBLESS HELP

13.7 Per Cent Decrease Taken as Indication of Better Economic Conditions.

Evidence that Mansfield's economic pulse is beating a little faster was seen today in the state bureau of unemployment compensation's monthly report which showed a marked decrease in claims filed by jobless workers.

C. W. Handley, Mansfield district manager, said a total of 147 claims were filed at the office here during July, a 13.7 per cent decrease from the number of applications made during June.

Benefits payments to jobless workers, in the three county district of Richland, Ashland and Morrow counties, however, increased $40,287, an increase of 31.8 per cent over the payments made the month previous.

Handley said the July total amounted to $211,600, the total amount of unemployment compensation distributed by the state during the first seven months of this year.

His report showed that the average weekly benefits for both partial and total unemployment topped the state average, the average for the total unemployment being $10.60, as compared with the state average of $10.72.

Average weekly benefits for partial unemployment were $6.19 as against a state average of $1.92.

Placements in industry also showed a decline, a total of 210 persons placed in new jobs during the month. This is a decrease of 3.5 per cent from the June total.

Handley said registrations for employment during July totaled 183, boosting the number listed on the active file for employment to 3,969 persons.

Missionaries in Africa Want Only Hand-Me-Downs.

TIPTON, Ind. 488—The Methodist Church here is going into the second hand business because missionaries in darkest Africa can't use anything but hand-me-downs.

Charles W. Fields, recent graduate from Boston University School of Theology and his wife, both natives of Tipton, are going to venture into the mission field at Angola, Portuguese East Africa.

However, the country in Central Africa to which they have been assigned by the board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Church has such a stringent tariff law that the duty often is twice as much as the original cost of the article.

The church here to which the couple belongs has begun a campaign to get enough used articles to furnish the mission home of Mr. and Mrs. Fields.

The Fields will even take used shoes to the mission field, and when they want replacements, they will have persons back home "break in" the shoes so that there will be only a slight duty to pay.

Steels, Motors, Aircrafts In Group Favored; Commodities Trifle Uneven.

NEW YORK — A few more buyers entered the stock market today and bid up leading issues fractions to more than a point.

Favored at the start included U. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, General Electric, Glenn Martin, DuPont, Westinghouse, American Telephone, Pennsylvania, Sears Roebuck and Texas Corp.

Bonds were steady but somewhat less buoyant than in the preceding session. Commodities were a trifle uneven.

Among items studied in financial quarters were:

The country's bank clearings for the week ended Aug. 21, as summarized by Dun & Bradstreet, showed a recession of 4.3 per cent from the corresponding period last year but were $165,800,000 ahead of the preceding week.

Reports from the steel industry indicated orders currently are running at about the level of production.

NEW BAR TEST

Revolutionary Exams Tried By Massachusetts.

BOSTON —(AP)—A revolution in bar examinations procedure in the United States soon will take place, with Massachusetts staging the uprising.

Each of the 800 applicants taking his examination on August 2 will have in his possession a "pamphlet" which is a hypothetical report on a case from a Superior Court judge to the Summe Court. All questions asked the students taking the examinations will be based upon this fictional case. The students, in the month preceding the exam had access to the "pamphlet" upon payment of a $15 fee. The idea is entirely "experimental." No other State in the Union so far as the Massachusetts bar examiners know now has or ever had such a system of examinations.

This new method tests the applicant's capacity to "reason like a lawyer" according to the examining board. The trouble in the past they said was the inability of the applicants to analyze questions in the time allotted to them.

TOWEL DIET. TOLLADO (AP). Someone dropped a Turkish towel in the Toledo Zoo's sea-lion pool and now zoo officials are looking for a new sea-lion. The animal ate the towel and died. The zoo valued the sea-lion at $45.

'TIPSY' DRIVING INCREASING, CITY COURT RECORDS INDICATE

"Topsy" driving is on the increase in the Mansfield area, a survey of the municipal court criminal docket revealed today.

The mixture of alcohol and gasoline caused the arrest of 45 persons during the first seven months of this year for operating motor vehicles while under the influence of alcohol as compared with 39 during the same period during the first seven months of 1939.

In all of 1939 57 such arrests were made. In 1938 the total was 40.

Records reveal that the major portion of the arrests made for drunk driving were made by state highway patrolmen outside the city limits, practically all of the offenses occurring during the late evening or early morning hours.

The municipal court docket shows that offenders drew more severe penalties during the past seven months than in the previous year. In each instance, driving rights were revoked for one year, a mandatory measure upon conviction.

STEALS SALAMI

BOSTON (AP)—A roll of salami led a youthful Concord Reformatory parolee into the toils of the law. Investigating a break at the European Restaurant in the North End police found the parolee calmly munching on the salami as he sat at a table loaded with food. He told the officers he broke into the restaurant "just to get a bite to eat."

The town of Morelas, Mexico, has a street the inhabitants of which have a remarkable record for good health. Maybe they don't take sides during a presidential election like the last one.

The composer of the famous "Sweet Adeline" song continues to receive, after many years, a substantial royalty. It's only natural that "Sweet Adeline" would have some connection with heavy sugar.

Shelby City Employees Filling In Sand at Sewer Plant.

SHELBY—City street employees are busy this week replacing sand at the municipal sewer plant and resurfacing West Park drive. Street Commissioner Guy McClane revealed today.

Some 1,200 to 1,400 tons of sand will be replaced with new sand at the sewer plant. McClane pointed out, where renovation of the filter beds is underway. Purchase of the sand from J. C. Morris company of this city was approved by city officials after that company had offered low bid on the sand earlier in the month.

The city is paying for the sand by selling bonds totaling $5,000

LUCKY FOR LOVE

CHAPTER XXIV.

"Yes, I'm afraid I'll have to give up trying to make sense out of Clara. As Al Martino says, she'll have to make sense for herself and make it the hard way. As long as she practiced her hatefulness on me, I was willing to take it and do what I could to turn it into the trust and the affection sisters should have for each other. But when Clara began striking at me through my friends, cheating them and lying to them, trying to trick them to her will, she made me realize that appeasement is no cure for downright treachery. I'm through following her about, begging her to behave decently. I owe the best of myself to my job, and I've been giving nothing but the husks and the leftovers. From now on Clara, not Clara, comes first."

"I was wondering how long it would take you to catch up with yourself," Kathleen said with a sigh of relief. "Another few days of that hollow-eyed dazed business you were giving out and Cookie would have taken measures. She's had the binoculars on you plenty. I quaked every time I saw her turn them your way. She knew you were harassed mentally and lagged physically, not a very good combination for rising young copy writers. That's why I'm sure the two slogans you used to ring Clara's bell are honey. Cookie was all set to give you the gate. Instead, she's giving you orchids. Sure you won't fall back into the doldrums again, come Clara and her cute capers."

"Not a fall," Marilyn promised. "Not even a stumble. Bruce made me see how wrong my tactics have been. I promised him I'd be less sentimental and more practical, for Clara's sake and my own."

"Oh, so you promised Bruce," Kathleen teased. "Then there is hope for you and for your job with Clara. Look Lynn, this is a special day. It calls for a chicken patties at Caston's. And a heart of lettuce salad with Roquefort dressing. No use 'nosing' me. I've had my heart set on my appetite—set on 'em for weeks and this is the finest excuse ever for going overboard. Let's hurry so we'll have plenty of time for the patties."

"Chicken patties by Caston's—they do sound yummy," The two girls broke into what amounted to a trot.

Miss Cook went so far as to unbend into a ghost of cordiality when Marilyn reported to her after lunch.

"You did nicely with your slogans this morning, Miss Marsh," she said, her eyes making a penetrating study of her subject. "We may find use for two of them. I was beginning to think you had made a mistake bringing me to Clara. If you have had trouble adjusting yourself, if there have been outside distractions, put such things behind you. My patience is not everlasting, and it is time you show more than promise. You understand, don't you, Miss Marsh?"

Marilyn met the penetrating study with eyes frank and unafraid. "Yet, Miss Cook, I understand," she said. "You've been very kind, and very patient. I shall try to repay you by doing the best work of which I am capable."

able, by allowing nothing to interfere with that work."

"Very well. The main office will want you to confer with the board about the slogans. They will get in touch with you later. You may return to your desk now, Miss Marsh."

The telephone was ringing as Lynn and Kathleen entered their apartment that evening, foot-weary and high-spirited. They had walked home from the office. "Catch it," Kathleen called to Lynn, making for the cubbyhole kitchenette. "I'm all tangled up in lamb chops and rye rolls."

Bruce Gordon's voice came over the wire: "Great going, Lynn. You turned in a pair of the best slogans we've had in weeks. We're using both of them in our next promotion project. How about coming out to dinner with me? We'll put on paper caps and ring bells."

"Thanks, Bruce," She wanted to say, "Yes, please, and let's hurry. Let's dance and sing, just you and I, until dawn." But what of her promise to Miss Cook? Rest, sleep, they were all but strangers to her. She said, "I love paper caps and I love ringing bells and I love you're a dear, but honestly I'm not up to anything except turning in and resting the clock around. Do you mind?"

"Of course I mind, but I'll let you off this once. Until tomorrow. Sweet dreams, sweet!"

Marilyn awakened with a start. The telephone was ringing insistently. She fumbled for the light beside her bed. The telephone kept up its clatter.

"What's the matter?" Kathleen asked thickly through the dark. "What time is it? Who's making that infernal noise?"

"The phone," Lynn still fumbled for the elusive light. "It must be the middle of the night." Then she found the light. "Kathie, it's three o'clock. Who would be ringing her at this hour?"

"Maybe it's a wrong number. Wouldn't that be lucky?"

"Maybe it's Kathie, something's wrong at home—Mums or Dad, or Bill—Yes, this is Marilyn Marsh. What is it please?"

Glad to Tell Anybody What Vendol Did Says Mrs. Knipp

Declares it has been years since I felt so good finding the right medicine. Relieved constipation, stomach upsets, and other troubles.

MRS. FRANK KNIPP

In scores of instances Vendol has won public acclaim by the best and most substantial residents of this state, for bringing back the joy of living after months, and sometimes years of complaints that robbed them of glowing health. An example of how Vendol helped such a person is the public statement from Mrs. Frank Knipp, residing at 331 North Main street, Mansfield, who says:

"Constipation kept me feeling so bad that neither mealtime nor bedtime were pleasures to look forward to. This constipated condition kept my stomach upset with everything indigestion and most everything lay heavy, turned to sour gas and riled up in my throat. Felt like there was a lump on my chest and I often had sick headaches and was so nervous that I couldn't get to sleep for hours after going to bed. Next morning I'd feel limp as a rag with no energy to go to work.

"Sometimes I'd feel bilious with spots dancing before my eyes and when I stooped over I'd have to

Two stitches were required to close the cut after the hook was removed.

HIS SUIT SINKS

BROKEN POP BOTTLE SHATTERS DREAM OF LIFETIME.

DETROIT (UPI)—Arthur Scott's dream of 26 years to flop about on the surface of the water "just like a pelican" was exploded by a broken pop bottle.

The bottle's jagged edge punctured his black rubber "pelican suit" equipped with wings, webbed feet, headlights for "finding your way when you're lost at sea" and a couple of spare pockets for chocolate bars.

Scott demonstrated his one-piece rubber combination zipper suit and rubber boots in the Detroit river. As he donned the garb and waded out, speculation was rife. Then the word went around that "he's going to walk on the water."

When he got out into water, up to his chest the pop bottle appeared, and "swoosh" went the suit.

"It was a dream of a lifetime," he said.

Mansfield News-Journal AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, AUGUST 22, 1940.

Hitler's death has been forecast for August 30—but by none of his astrologers.

Closer study reveals that acceptance of the nomination was also mentioned in Willkie's acceptance speech.

This might be a good time for Uncle Sam to bring out that old rattlesnake flag with the motto, "Don't Tread On Me."

Shortage of 'White Collar' Jobs

A DISTINGUISHED group of American educators, reporting to the American Youth Commission, insists on more practical education for changed times.

"The great majority of pupils in secondary schools," they say, "are led by the studies they pursue to hope for careers in 'white collar' jobs. Any examination of the opportunities that are really open makes it clear that the hopes fostered by the present educational system are sure to be disappointed for most of those now registered in secondary schools."

The experts recommend a return to "the realistic educational views of early colonial settlers." It might be a good thing for educators and parents generally to hark back to the practical lessons of pioneer times. Outward conditions have changed much, but the big need is now what it was then—the fitting of education and training to current needs and facts.

No 'Civilized' Warfare

THE HUMAN game laws are mostly eliminated already in Europe, and progress continues in that course. One of the latest improvements is that Nazi operations over the English Channel, as described by Berlin authorities, are now conducted on a "free chase" basis. The phrase is explained as meaning that the Nazi airmen may strike where and how they please.

A note in a Canadian newspaper says: "Such Nazi airmen as have been able to break through Britain's defenses have struck indiscriminately at military objectives and open targets alike. Houses and churches have been bombed and civilians machine-gunned in the street."

This is always a game that both sides can play, and when one fellow starts in the other generally follows in retaliation. So in the military hunting of human game almost anything may soon be permissible. Mankind in its highest development reverts to the most primitive ethics.

More Large and Small Bank Loans

DEMAND for bank loans is increasing—and the banks, on the whole, are meeting the legitimate needs of large and small borrowers alike. That is the logical deduction to be made from a survey of commercial bank loans for 1939, which covered 6,500 banks, holding about 80 per cent of the nation's commercial bank deposits.

Last year, these banks made 13,000,000 new personal and business loans, for the tremendous aggregate of $23,700,000,000. They renewed more than 12,000,000 loans, for a total of $16,300,000,000, and made 297,000 mortgage loans on real estate, totaling $988,000,000.

Two highly interesting trends were in evidence: First, demand for bank loans is on the rise as indicated by the fact that the volume of loans during the second half of the year was 17 per cent greater than in the first half. Second, a very large proportion of all the transactions made involved relatively small amounts.

The average loan was $1,815, and the average mortgage was $3,155. Inasmuch as the total includes returns from very large banks which carry on transactions in astronomical amounts, it is evident that the majority of loans made by the typical bank involve small sums.

Summing up the experience of the year, the banks covered in the survey served their customers in nearly 26,000,000 separate credit transactions, for a total of $41,000,000,000. That money went to build homes and factories, to expand industries, to pay pressing personal obligations, to employ labor, to market new commodities—for all of the thousand and one activities which constitute the involved economic life of a great nation.

Stokowski's Young Musicians

LEOPOLD STOKOWSKI and his All-American Youth orchestra are now making their South American tour. In their recent appearance in the great opera house in Rio de Janeiro, they played to a capacity crowd and received "thunderous applause."

Musical critics in that part of the world say they are impressed with the quality of the orchestra, which is composed of youthful musicians got together for this special trip. It is regarded as a "compact musical body of undisputed worth." Assembled only last spring, it is now "tuneful, excellent, comprehensive and cohesive, with certain deficiencies filled by enthusiasm and ardent conviction." The results produced are called "most happy."

This good-will orchestra may win the United States many friends in Latin-America. It should also win the young American musicians many friends in their own country. It has proved the great wealth of talent that exists in the United States. Hereafter it should be easier to find ways to keep such talent from going to waste.

Poor Year for Pension Schemes

ONE annoyance, at least, which Ohio voters will escape at the November election will be that of once more defeating the Herbert S. Brown pension scheme, which its sponsor had threatened to bring up again this year after it was badly beaten a year ago.

Concentration of public attention on the international situation, exacting government funds, and calls for additional millions of dollars for defense have served to make this a poor year to promote far-sighted pension "plans" or gather in the shekels from Cleveland voters.

Ancient Egypt Awaits War

EGYPTIANS, waiting belligerently for the war to reach them—as it soon will—made an interesting study. For 1,000 years that burned and bled race has been warring and pursuing prey in its narrow confines.

Civilization has been piled on civilization, and the arts of war and peace largely originated there. Yet they are still substantially the same people as in the days of Nomes and, far back beyond that, of the early Pharaohs before the Pyramids were built. And from present indications, these troops in Cairo may still give a good account of themselves.

Time Should Not Heal Your Hurts.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THEY SAY "time heals your hurts." They say that, with the passage of the months and years, you will forget the sting of that betrayal. . . the secret searing of that ridicule. . . the aching emptiness of heart and arms, when love has got it away—

Well—maybe some folks can. There may be people who find healing for their wounds in just a living on, like turnips, cats and owls. Going to night spots. Taking trips and buying clothes. Talking to Mabel or to Sam about their fallen arches or their income tax. Maybe "time heals their wounds"—if so, I wish them luck.

BUT TIME CAN'T HEAL MY HURTS. I WOULDN'T WANT IT TO! NOR DO I THINK IT HEALS THE HURT OF ANY GROWN-UP SOUL!

Forget the stabs and stings? The shame and the remorse of having been a sucker or a fool? The dear delight of love—and what it cost?

Why should we wish that Time would take away such hurt? One might as well forget the meal and milk that built our healthy bones. . . the wind and sun that gave us ruddy flesh. . . the stars and dawns that taught us beauty, as we grew.

How can we learn what Life is all about—unless we pass those tests of which Life's made? Life is not made of birthdays—calendars. Nor parties—clothes—vacations—jobs and love affairs.

Our Life is made by things we cannot weigh. Our growth is marked by things we cannot time. We live by living—and by sharing Life. By sharing dream and blunders, sweat and laughter, weariness and tears. We live by living—and by losing what means most. As babies lose their milk.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

British Chances Believed Better Despite Need for More Airplanes

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—On the wall behind the desk of Major General H. H. Arnold, chief of the army air corps, is a giant map of the British Isles splashed with chalk marks to indicate where the German air raids have struck.

It is one of the most closely scrutinized maps in Washington. On it, in the lower left hand corner, is the score for the day "1,000 planes in waves of 54 and 108," and so on, according to the Nazi operations for that particular day.

U. S. Air Corps observers are having a tough time finding out just exactly what is happening in England, because of a censorship which applies even to them. However, they are full of admiration for the Royal Air Force, and believe the odds now are almost 50-50 instead of being one to ten against the British, as they were two months ago.

The fight actually boils down to one of machines versus men. For the Nazis still have at least three planes for every one the British put up in the air. Furthermore, there is every evidence that the Nazis have tremendous reserves at home—probably about 20,000 planes. At this rate they can afford to lose 100 a day (British claims frequently have been less than this) and continue raining death and destruction upon England for some time to come.

At present England is making her own airplanes at the rate of about 66 daily, and buying seven daily from the United States. It is conservative to give Germany credit for making at least that many—in fact, she is reported to be making around 100 planes daily.

In other words, airplane production continues in favor of Germany by about 27 planes daily. Meanwhile, the most important factor working in favor of England is the climate. Once the British fogs set in, England will have better protection than all the anti-aircraft guns she can possibly muster.

Dixie Invasion.

WENDELL WILLKIE is serious about invading the South. He is firmly convinced he can repeat Hoover's 1928 achievement and capture some of these Democratic strongholds from Roosevelt.

This belief is based on Willkie's feeling that he knows the South and southern psychology as a result of his long experience as head of Commonwealth and Southern, and this role, he traveled extensively below the Mason-Dixon line, and is confident that the South can be taken away from the Democrats by the right kind of approach.

A possible clue to this new approach is the inside word in GOP circles that a study is being made of the chances of running Willkie in southern states on a ticket which would feature the word "Democratic" someplace in its title. One name reported under consideration is the "Democratic Unity Party."

'Skeeter' Expert. DURING his recent naval inspection trip, President Roosevelt made one stop which was not reported in the papers. It was at the Washington navy yard.

He was debarking from the USS Potomac when he learned that the first of the mosquito boats the navy is building was tied up in the yard. He had never seen one of these tiny fighting ships, and immediately dropped everything to go over to inspect it.

Lieutenant Earl S. Caldwell, commander of the craft, acted as presidential guide. But the president didn't need a guide. He not only knew all the answers but he made a suggestion that may increase the potency of the new mosquito boats. These little vessels are extremely fast, moving at such speed that it is almost impossible to hit them. Traveling at 50 miles per hour, they can get close to a battleship before they release their torpedoes.

It was in these torpedoes that Roosevelt displayed particular interest. Four are carried by each vessel—two forward and two aft. The president examined them carefully, then inquired: "Why couldn't depth bombs be substituted for the torpedoes in the rear tubes? Then each boat would have bombs as well as torpedoes. It might accomplish with very little, if any, change in design, providing, of course, there wasn't too big a weight differential."

"That way," he continued, "these 'skeeters' could be used not only against surface craft, but also against submarines." Caldwell, one of the navy's "skeeter" aces, rubbed his chin reflectively, and replied: "You've got something there, Mr. President. It sounds like an excellent idea. Wonder why we hadn't thought of it before."

After Roosevelt left, Caldwell remarked to fellow officers. "He's a marvel. He knows more about naval craft than some admirals who have spent their lives on them."

Note—According to navy authorities, "skeeter" torpedo tubes are large enough to hold two depth bombs, each about the size of a gasoline drum. Thus, if the president's suggestion is followed, the boats, capable of 50-mile-an-hour speed, would carry four bombs and two torpedoes.

Navy Boozie.

DURING World War I, booze was knocked out of the navy by Secretary Josephus Daniels. Now, during World War II, booze with a capital B is brought back again.

In this case, however, Boozie is a man. Edwin G. Boozie is an efficiency expert from Chicago, a man who knows how to cut corners in office management, how to send a memo from the first floor to the third in a matter of minutes instead of days.

One of the first things that troubled the new secretary of navy, Frank Knox, was the lack of efficiency in the civilian operation of the navy department. Knowing Boozie's reputation for snipping red tape in office routine, Knox sent for him. He has undertaken, but not yet completed, an intensive study of the navy's bureau set-up.

This is partly to rectify errors of the past, partly to prepare for future expansion. When congress passes the 70 per cent increase in navy personnel, there will be a tremendous triple problem of finding new people, finding office space for them, and meshing the new cogs into the old machine. A Farmer's Diary

Barnyard Orphans

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

The year-old white hen hid her nest on the bank overlooking the road and came off proudly with eight young ones. When first we saw her on the barnyard she was clucking and scratching and admiring her family in the new-blown straw from the threshing floor.

They were active sprightly peeps and we wished her well, even while we doubted the wisdom of her reproductive venture so late in the season. Every day she brought the little brood down into the yard for food and water. Every night she led them back up the steep bank to the old nesting place beneath a briary tangle. The children saw her there, cossily ensconced, out of reach of human hands, with a bright-eyed yellow chick cuddled down upon her back.

She kept all eight safe from prowling cats or varmints for nearly a week. Once a hawk came over and she was much excited and hustled her family into the garage without delay. When the tallest child thought to tease her by picking up one of the downy brood she attacked like an avenging fury with spread claws and flapping wings and open mouth, well nigh upsetting both the body and the morale of her persecutor. It was her first family, and she rested neither day nor night in the careful upbringing of her eight dependents.

Alas, she reckoned without the machine age! Yesterday, leading lines from coast to coast eight or ten years ago when Helen Hayes, at chickens' bedtime, to the safe coast. She was going to have a baby and she told her producers that she was entitled to break her contract because of "an act of God."

Close-Up of Walter Chrysler. It is difficult to write an adequate estimate of Walter P. Chrysler now. We are too close to him. He will loom larger as his career is viewed through reaches of time. But, as in all greatness there is an element of simplicity, the largest factor in Mr. Chrysler's success is easily understood. No one ever stated it better than when he said: "The man who makes good is the man who starts his job with enthusiasm. He also is the man who does a little more than is expected of him."

Giving more than was expected was his idea of just bargaining. No doubt at every step in his progress he was surrounded by those who did not believe in opportunity, who thought the job had no future, who were willing to offer less production while demanding more pay. Chrysler always got the promotion because he contacted with those who held such theories.—Detroit News.

Words of the Wise

This is the law of benefits between men, the one ought to forget at once what he has given, and the other ought never to forget what he has received.—Seneca.

This Is Ohio

Millions of Americans who "go westward" have their roots in the Buckeye state. Colonization of the entire northwest territory started in 1788 when a brave and hardy band of New Englanders floated down the Ohio river and dropped anchor at the mouth of the Muskingum river.

From this original settlement at Marietta on April 7, 1788, developed the steadily advancing frontiers of new land which eventually reached the Pacific ocean. The early Ohio pioneer trails developed into cross-country highways of today, and millions of westerners tell of forebears who came from the "Ohio country."

OPEN 3RD LAKE IN FLOOD CHAIN FOR FISHERMEN

Senecaville Reservoir To Be Added Sept. 1; It's the Largest of All.

With fishermen reporting good catches in the Charles Mill lake east of Mansfield, since it was opened seven weeks ago, the Ohio Conservation commission announced today that the Senecaville reservoir, largest in the Muskingum district, will be opened for fishing on Sept. 1.

The conservancy board is scheduled to meet within the next few days to set up boating regulations for the Pleasant Hill reservoir near Loudonville, open since July 1 for boating and fishing.

It is understood that a number of complaints have been filed with the Conservancy board about fishermen using motorboats on the reservoir without permission. It is expected that two or three motorboats and several rowboats will be available for rental at the Pleasant Hill lake.

The big Senecaville lake and Leesville reservoir, also in the district, will be opened to "give fishermen a sample" of fishing in the vast eastern and southern Ohio area, a division announcement said.

Located in Guernsey and Noble counties, the Senecaville reservoir will cover 3,550 water acres when brought to full conservation stage by U. S. army engineers. Leesville, to cover 1,000 acres, is located in southern Carroll county.

The division said decision to open the reservoirs came after an agreement with officials of the conservancy district. The conservancy division leased fishing rights for 11 of the Muskingum reservoirs recently.

Net tests, the division said, have indicated that both the Leesville and Senecaville are well-stocked with fish. Fishing is from 4 a. m. to 9 p. m. from Sept. 1 to Dec. 31.

Bryce Browning, secretary-treasurer of the Muskingum Conservancy Board, informed the division that because water was not up to full level at Senecaville, fishing from rowboats would be dangerous due to many stumps and snags just below the surface.

Because park developments, a dock and a beach are being constructed at the big reservoir, fishing will be restricted to the north shore of Senecaville, but will be open along the entire shoreline at Leesville.

Number of School Age Children In County Decreases

There are 13,874 boys and girls between the ages of 5 and 17 years in Mansfield and Richland county, 140 fewer than at the same time last year, city-county school enumeration figures showed today.

The enumeration report, filed with County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe, listed 7,336 youngsters in that age limit in Mansfield. Shelby was second with 1,662 and Madison township third with 1,008.

Other rural school district reports showed 500 in Springfield township, 493 in Union Rural district, 555 in Bellville, 362 in Butler village, 335 in Cass township, 392 in Lexington, 363 in Lucas, and 267 in Plymouth.

MODEL BUILDERS GROOMING PLANES FOR SUNDAY CONTEST

With the seventh annual summer meet of the Frank Lahm Cadets coming up Sunday, Mansfield model airplane enthusiasts were busy putting the finishing touches to their crafts this week.

Provided there is good flying weather Sunday, the first group of model airplanes will take off from the Mansfield Municipal airport at 12 noon, E. C. Peat, adviser to the group, said today.

Gas model glider, sailplane, and rubber powered models will compete in the meet. Divisions for each type of airplane have been set up and prizes will be given to the winners of each division.

All divisions will be run on the basis of three official flights and the highest average of three flights will determine the winner. The length of time the models stay in the air will be the basis of computation.

TIED, NERVOUS PEOPLE MAY HAVE SIMPLE ANEMIA
Simple Anemia (deficient quality of the blood) develops so gradually, in many people, that they don't realize it's there until they realize what is the matter. Without enough of oxygen and other essential materials, your blood slowly starves your body into an anemic state. The physical resistance of such a body is lowered, making it more susceptible to disease. Fortunately, there is a simple way to fight simple Anemia—with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They contain from which the hemoglobin in your red blood cells must have to carry vital, life-giving oxygen and other essentials from your lungs to every part of your body. against ships, the torpedo apparently was jetted from a plane which could find no more suitable target.

It fell into a row of eight workers' cottages and made a shambles of them, burying many and causing an unannounced number of casualties.

Germans Report Airports Bombed

BERLIN (AP)—The German high command said today that 15 airports and numerous industrial plants, as well as port and rail facilities, were attacked yesterday by German planes.

The communiqué said bomb hits were observed on industrial plants at Skogness, Great Yarmouth, Witney, Coventry and Bourne-mouth, as well as on the port facilities of Bridlington.

It also claimed that German fliers bombed a ship in the yards at Southampton, and another in a convoy on the east coast of England.

It said an airplane factory southeast of London and an armament factory near Brighton were bombed.

The communiqué acknowledged that British airmen had raided north Germany, but insisted they caused only minor damage.

Say Torpedoes Just Large Bombs

BERLIN (AP)—Observers here said today that the "aerial torpedoes" which some Britons report were dropped in England last night probably are large bombs, possibly of 1,000 kilograms (2,205 pounds).

Observers say the 1,000-kilogram bomb resembles a torpedo in many respects. It has fins on the tail and a barrel-shaped fan behind the fins to steady descent. Some are as much as 10 or 12 feet long.

Italians Claim Successes At Sea

ROME (AP)—The sinking of a British submarine in the eastern Mediterranean, torpedoing of a British destroyer and air attacks on a squadron of British cruisers in which two were reported damaged were announced by the Italian high command today.

Air raiders who bombed Gibraltar early yesterday were identified as Italian in today's communiqué. It said one of the attacking planes was lost.

Hits Scored On Italian Airdrome

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—British warplanes have scored hits on the port and airdrome at Mogadiscio capital of Italian Somaliland, and on buildings at the nearby town of Merca the Royal Air Force announced today.

It also reported hits on the Italian naval oil tanks and a jetty at Tobruk, Italian coastal base in Libya near the Egyptian frontier.

Egypt Ready To Declare War

CAIRO, EGYPT (AP)—Determined to declare war if Italian troops cross Egypt's borders, the Egyptian government warned its defenses today and prepared for possible action.

unters, who would be assigned to aid in defending the central part of the settlement, the important business and financial district, which withdrawing British troops had guarded.

The American consulate general made representations to the Japanese consulate general today against damage done to American property at Chungking, the temporary Chinese capital, by Japanese bombing planes.

Usually well informed Japanese reported that Japanese army negotiators had completed the draft of a "peace treaty" with the Japanese-sponsored regime at Nanking, which purports to administer territory occupied by Japan and seeks to undermine the Chinese government.

The informants said that the treaty would be submitted to the Japanese government with a view to its signature October 10, anniversary of the founding of the Chinese republic.

There had been reports of backing both between the Japanese and the Nanking men and among the Nanking men themselves over terms of the treaty. Wang Ching-wei, head of the Nanking regime, was reported insisting on concessions from the Japanese and demanding that all clauses of the so-called treaty be phrased exactly. The Japanese were said to have desired to phrase the treaty loosely so that in future it might be subject to broad interpretation.

Wang had demanded that Japan fix a definite date for withdrawal of its army and that it return ownership of railroads, telegraphs and other public utilities to China.

Japan agreed to some demands, it was reported, but insisted that its compliance with the demands be effective only after "the cessation of hostilities." Some Chinese seemed to feel that Japan might in future interpret "hostilities" to mean attempts, long after the end of the present war, to combat bandits.

Informed opinion here was that any treaty which Japan would negotiate with the Nanking regime would have no effect on the determination of the Chinese government to fight on.

WPA UNION TO CHANGE NAME

President Says Local to Sever All Connection With Workers' Alliance.

Back from Chicago where he attended a conference at which a new WPA union was organized, John Sparks, Mansfield, said today that the former Richland County Workers' Alliance membership will immediately take a new name and sever its connection with the Workers' Alliance.

Retaining the same officers, including Sparks as president, the county organization will be known as the Richland County Security Local No. 1. It will be affiliated with the national WPA American Security union headed by David Lasser, former president of the Workers' Alliance.

Sparks said Lasser criticized the Workers' Alliance for "failing to purge its ranks of Communists" and announced he was withdrawing as its president.

He said the national organization at Chicago endorsed President Roosevelt for a third term. The president he said, sent a message of greeting to the 200 delegates at the conference.

The new Security union will have more than 600 members in Richland county and "they will be 100 per cent American," Sparks said. He added that the union will work for more consideration for WPA workers in the national defense program.

In connection with the dispatch it was noted in London that in recent days there had been numerous reports of German troop movements in France.

SPEEDY VERDICT CLEARS DOCKET FOR COURT TERM

Young Ashlander Convicted In 30 Minutes, Sentenced to Ohio Pen.

One of the shortest criminal trials on record in Richland county cleared the county's criminal docket for the spring court term shortly before noon today.

In less than an hour and a half after Jerry Wilt, 21, R. D. 1, Ashland, went on trial for obtaining property under false pretense he was convicted and sentenced to one to three years in the Ohio penitentiary. Sentence was imposed by Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston.

Wilt, who previously served a term in a Michigan reformatory for larceny and is wanted now by Michigan authorities for taking a mortgaged car out of the state, was convicted by a jury of six men and six women on a charge of fraudulently obtaining $246 worth of fireworks last June from D. C. Donley, Mansfield fireworks jobber.

Donley testified that Wilt bought the fireworks on the pretense that he operated roadside stands at Delaware.

Wilt admitted that he told Donley he operated stands, but said his plans to lease them after getting the fireworks failed to materialize.

In summing up the case for the jury at the end of a 55-minute trial, Prosecutor G. W. Marriott asserted that "this is one of the most useless trials we have ever conducted in the county. Wilt put the county to the expense of trying him, knowing that he didn't have a defense to offer."

The jury was out less than 30 minutes. Wilt's case was presented by Atty. Arthur Negin, appointed by the court.

After the verdict was brought in, the jurors were dismissed subject to call.

County Clerk Fred R. Zellner said there are no other criminal cases on the docket and it is not likely that the same jury will be recalled before the fall terms opens next month.

O. S. R. Fugitives Suspected In Theft of Automobile.

Two Ohio State reformatory trustees who walked away from the institution farm yesterday afternoon were blamed today for the theft of an automobile, recovered this morning near Louisville in Licking county.

The car was reported missing from the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate parking lot shortly after 6 p. m. by Oliver Hurst, R. D. 5, Mansfield. He told sheriff's deputies that the keys were left in the ignition. It was recovered early today on a country road where it had been abandoned.

Supt. Arthur L. Glatke said the pair fled from fields where they were working about 3 p. m. He identified them as Clayton Amburgey, 17, of Clinton county, and Norris Westbrook, 21, of Licking county. Both were serving one to 15 year terms for burglary.

SHIFT DATE OF DRIVING TESTS

Drivers' examinations by the Mansfield highway patrol will be given in the future on the second Thursday of each month instead of the second Saturday, highway patrol officials announced today.

The change in the day was made because Saturday is the patrol's busiest day and an effort is being made to keep as many patrolmen as possible on the road. The examinations will be given from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. on Thursday.

Morrow county patrolmen have also changed the date of giving examinations, it was learned. Morrow county examinations will be given on the first Thursday of each month from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. in the future, instead of Saturday.

ing held up. A somewhat similar proposal failed early in the summer.

Senator Walsh (D.-Mass.) asserted yesterday that the real reason that the government had been slow in completing warplane contracts was because subcontractors were busy filling foreign orders at an 18 per cent profit and were uninterested in army orders where the profit was limited to 7 and 8 per cent.

The house ways and means committee has been laboring over an omnibus excess profits bill, designed to provide a co-ordinated program on the questions of excessive war profits, the profit restrictions on army and navy contracts, and amortization allowances for defense plant expansions.

The committee had hoped to have the legislation ready for the floor in a day or two.

During yesterday's conscription debate, the senate rejected on a constitutional point of order, a proposed amendment by Senator Lee (D.-Okla.) to "draft wealth" through forced loans to the government in time of an emergency.

STALIN BLAMED BY FRIENDS OF RUSSIAN EXILE

Mexican Police Hint Killing Result of International Plot Against Trotsky.

as he claimed, but an American citizen formerly of New York City.

Police also detained a woman listed as Sylvia Agaloff of Brooklyn, N. Y., whom they said was Jackson's sweetheart, but whom Trotsky's associates said they thought was Jackson's wife.

She said she was unaware of any assassination plot and wept as she recalled she had introduced Jackson to Trotsky. She said she was a sister of a former secretary of the exiled Russian.

Mrs. Trotsky and surgeons were in Trotsky's tiny hospital room when he coughed, gasped, feebly and died. Mrs. Trotsky wept softly and said: "That is life."

At first the hospital said the body would be kept there overnight for an autopsy but early today—after a death mask had been made by the noted Mexican sculptor, Ignacio Asunsolo—it was removed to the chapel of a private funeral home to lie in state.

President Lazaro Cardenas, who gave Trotsky refuge after Norway expelled him at Russia's behest, sent Gen. Hernandez Lamont, a member of his official staff, and three aides to the chapel to pay Mexico's respects. The officers took a turn at standing guard of honor.

Funeral plans were uncertain. Some of Trotsky's aides said burial "very likely" would be in Mexico City, but definite plans had not been made.

In New York, James Cannon, secretary of the Socialist Workers party in the United States—and mentioned by certain Trotsky followers as likely new head of the Fourth International—said:

"We plan to hold the funeral here to give the working people of New York an opportunity to show their reverence for the memory of this great leader and their hatred and contempt for Stalinism."

Trotsky Powerful Aide To Lenin

Leon Trotsky was Nikolai Lenin's most powerful assistant and confidante when the Bolsheviks seized power in Russia in 1917 in World war days, following the collapse of the Czarist regime and the bloody days thereafter.

As Lenin's right-hand man—he was the first commissar of foreign affairs and then war minister—it was generally believed that he would succeed his master upon the latter's death in 1924. But Joseph Stalin, present head of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, wrested the power from him.

They became sworn enemies. Trotsky was stripped from his offices and banished. He became a wanderer—driven from country to country—until 1937, when Mexico gave him refuge.

Below the Rio Grande this stormy petrel was almost always in trouble of some kind. He wrote voluminously; called Stalin and his followers "an unprincipled gang of wreckers;" declared the Comintern was doomed and charged that he was being hounded by the Russian secret police.

He was often in personal danger. Shortly after his arrival in Mexico a guard at his home was shot by unknown assailants. He was guarded after anti-Jewish disturbances in Mexico City in 1933. He had a row with Diego Rivera, the famous Mexican painter, at whose home he first lived in Mexico, and moved to Mexico City's suburbs in a house that was described as a fortress.

He narrowly escaped death on May 24, 1940, when a salvo of machine gun bullets swept through his bedroom. He and his wife were unharmed, but his guard, Robert Sheldon Harte of New York City, was kidnapped and later found dead. The police arrested twenty Mexicans but were unable to fix definite blame on any one. Trotsky asserted that Stalin instigated the plot through the Mexican Communist party.

On Aug. 20, he was savagely attacked in his home with a pickaxe by a man who posed as an admirer. The police arrested Frank Jackson of New York City. He confessed the police said that he struck him during a violent argument. Trotsky's skull was fractured, his hip and shoulders injured. An emergency operation was performed in a Mexico City hospital in a futile effort to save his life.

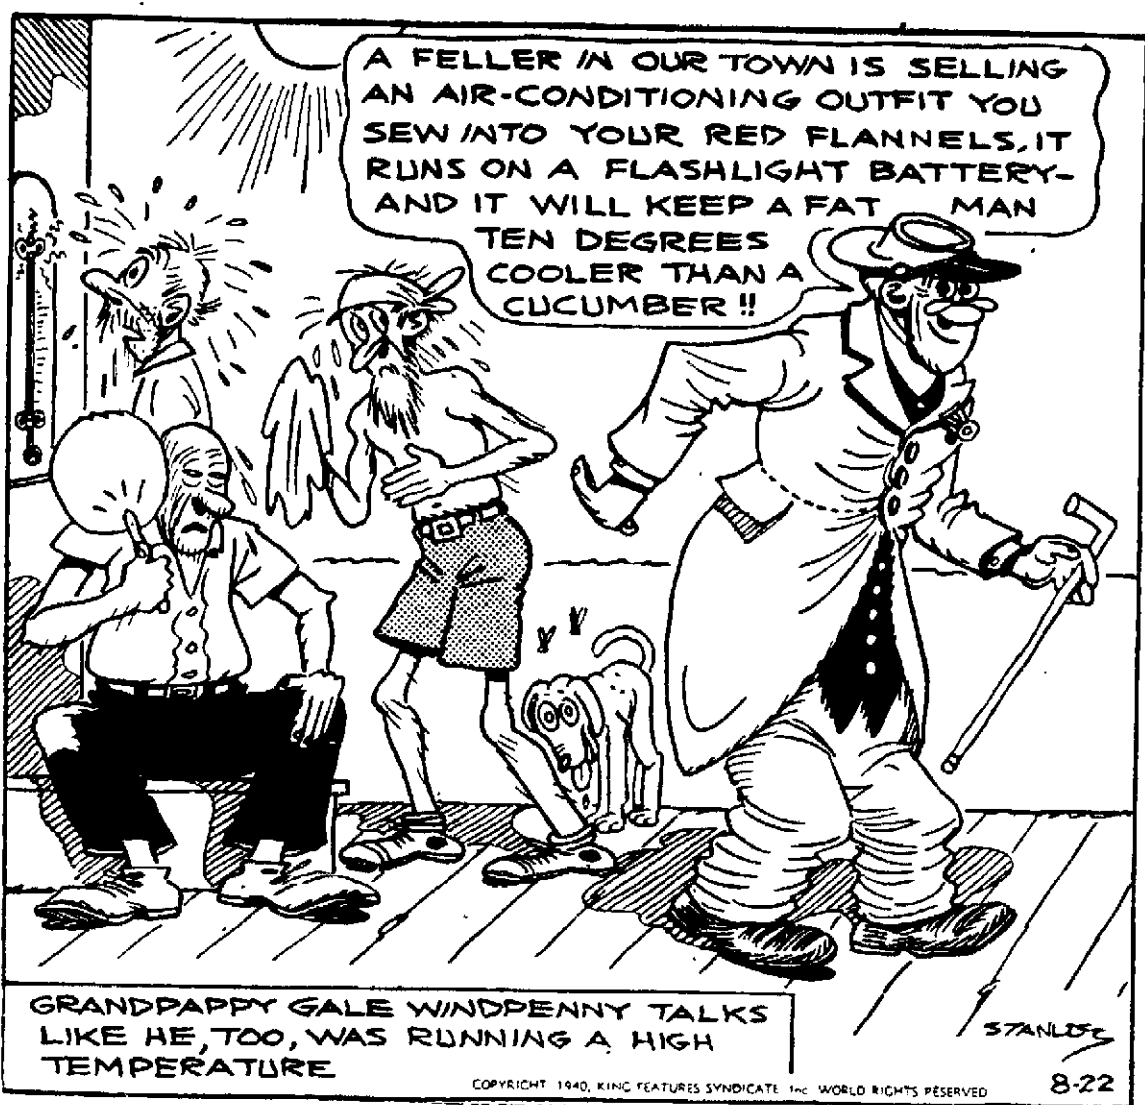

Trotsky, whose real name was Lev Davidovich Bronstein, was a native of the Ukraine, where his father was a prosperous Jewish farmer. He embraced Socialism when he was 17 and left home.

Two years later he was arrested in a police round-up and thereafter was frequently in trouble with authorities. He wandered in various countries and met Lenin in Finland.

During the World war he was shipped from one country to another and was living in New York, writing for various papers, when the Czar abdicated. He sailed for Europe where he met Lenin and others in St. Petersburg and engineered the coup that resulted in the overthrow of the Kerensky regime.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

By Stanley

He revived Russia's war weary soldiery and built a powerful military machine. His army held off Japanese attacks in Siberia, checked allied troops at Archangel, smashed White Russian armies on the east, south and west and carried the red banner of Communism to the very gates of Warsaw. Then Lenin died. Trotsky was exiled.

Propagandist In Exile.

From Turkestan, Turkey, France, Sweden, Norway and Mexico, he carried on against the Stalin regime. He wrote, gave interviews and, on occasion, made public addresses in Russian, French, German or English. Polygot secretaries translated his tirades into yet other languages. Meanwhile most of his fellow exiles had recanted and been readmitted to the Soviet fold.

That Trotsky remained a potent force was revealed when the Stalinists turned on his erstwhile adherents and, in the 1935-37 interval, obtained plot confessions from them and executed them in squads.

Sailing secretly on a small freighter, he left Europe, December 19, 1936, and reached Tampico, Mexico, on January 9, 1937, where he was met by Rivera. Trotsky pledged "complete and absolute non-intervention in Mexican politics and abstinence no less absolute from acts that could harm the amicable relations of Mexico with any other country."

Almost in the next breath he denounced the Moscow trials of his former associates as "frame-ups" and said that the charges against him personally were "absurd." But Mexico and the Soviet Union had severed diplomatic relations several years before and no "amicable relations" were threatened by this outburst.

Stalin Hatred Mutual.

The day Trotsky landed in Mexico an English translation of his bitterly-worded "The Revolution Betrayed" was delivered to a New York publishing house. The book charged that the Stalin regime had stifled Marxist socialism under a brutal bureaucracy and had substituted for the workers' and peasants' republic founded by Lenin, a totalitarian state comparable to the Nazi regime in Germany and the Fascist government of Italy.

In turn Stalin declared Trotsky aimed at a Fascist dictatorship for himself.

Exile, as such, held no terrors for Trotsky. In fact he passed only 30 years and six months free in his native Russia and 18 of those years covered the interval between birth and his first arrest.

In 1896, at Nikolayev, he and several other youths organized a socialist "cell" which grew into South Russia Workers' Union. On January 23, 1898, young Bronstein and 65 of his associates were netted in a public round-up. For two years he was in jail at Kherson and Odessa, then spent six months in the transfer prison at Moscow and in the spring of 1900 was banished to Ust-Kutsk in Siberia.

Exit 'Bronstein'; Enter 'Trotsky.'

In the summer of 1902, aided by a peasant who hid him in a haystack for two days and nights, he escaped and emerged as "Leon Trotsky." He translated his given name Lev (meaning "lion") into the French form "Leon" and then, with a sardonic gesture, added the surname of his Odessa jailer to the false passport on which he traveled to the outside world.

From his first Siberian exile he made his way to London and for the next few years moved around in Paris, Brussels, Liege and various cities of Germany. He met Lenin in London.

Trotsky spent six months in St. Petersburg following "Bloody Sunday" in January, 1905, then was forced to flee to Finland. Three months later he was back in the czar's capital, becoming president of the St. Petersburg soviet. He was presiding at a meeting when the czar's police captured all present. Trotsky was banished to Obdorsk, far beyond the Arctic circle

POLICE NIGHT-TARGET PRACTICE LOOKS LIKE A BABY BLITZKRIEG

The rat-tat of machine gun fire, and tiny white parachutes floating through the air carrying a bright light in the vicinity of the Mansfield airport last night must have had nearby residents wondering if it were a miniature blitzkrieg.

It was police of Mansfield, Ashland, Bucyrus, Shelby, and Mt. Vernon shooting machine gun and tracer bullets at silhouette targets in the light of parachute flares.

The target practice, arranged by Police Chief Meade K. Bates of Mansfield, was witnessed by about 150 persons. Among the visiting officers were Sheriff Dale Hammond and several officers from Ashland; Sheriff Albert French and officers from Bucyrus; Sheriff Biggs of Mt. Vernon, and Police Chief LeRoy Coffey and an officer from Shelby.

Arthur Judge, representative of the Lake Erie Chemical company, Cleveland, explained the purpose and the use of tracer bullets.

The tracer, he said, is like other shells in the magazine except that it is coated with a chemical which makes a brief flare as it explodes. Its purpose is to light the target and the vicinity in which it hits so that, in the dark, an officer has an opportunity to see whether his gun fire is reaching its target.

Officers took turns firing, using 20 shots each, in the light of the parachute flares. The flares were fired from a gun, exploding about 75 or 100 feet in the air beyond the targets, which were silhouettes of human figures. Some by parachutes of thin tissue the bright flare of white light drifted with the wind back over the targets.

The targets were peppered with shots from tracer guns.

This was the first time, Bates said, that his men have had any practice under flares. The parachute flares, which cost $5 each, are too expensive for ordinary practice and are used largely in hunting men or cars in rural sections.

Judge also demonstrated the use of tear gas bombs. The demonstration, however, was made with a harmless smoke instead of tear gas.

Ammunition used last night at the practice was purchased by Mansfield police from the fund raised at their annual policemen's ball, Bates said.

Attorneys Take Sweet Revenge In Annual Golf Meet

Revenge was sweet yesterday for Mansfield attorneys in their annual golf match with the doctors at Westbrook Country club; the lawyers easily trounced the doctors to avenge last year's one-point defeat.

Headed by Atty. James G. Hoffman and Municipal Judge G. E. Kaibfleisch who shot 80 and 81, respectively, the attorney team piled up a big margin in the afternoon matches with the score 24-8 according to Atty. Harold Burns, one of the scorekeepers, said.

About 50 professional men participated in the golf tourney and more than 40 attended the dinner at the clubhouse in the evening. Ten prizes donated by Mansfield merchants were awarded golf winners. The prizes included ties, pipes, golf balls, and other articles men like. Atty. William F. Black was toastmaster.

Representatives of the county bar association said dentists will be invited to join the doctors next year so the tourney won't be too one-sided in numbers.

INQUEST HELD

Man Fatally Shot While Being Taken To Jail.

IRONTON, N.J. — Coroner W. W. Lynd continued an inquest today into the fatal shooting of Emory Boggs, 34 while he was being taken to the Lawrence county jail by Patrolman Bill Wileman.

Boggs, arrested on an intoxication charge, reportedly attacked Wileman and the policeman was shot in the shoulder and hand by his own gun before he gained possession of it. Boggs was wounded four times, Wileman is recovering from his wounds in a hospital.

WORRIED OVER DAVEY LETTERS TO PENSIONERS

Violation of Social Security or Hatch Act Regarded as Possible.

(By International News Service) COLUMBUS — Possibility that the federal government might withhold Ohio old age pension funds because politicians are writing to pensioners is worrying state officials, it was learned today from an authoritative source.

State officials, it was learned, are fearful that such procedure might be construed as a violation of the social security act or possibly the Hatch act, both of which prohibits disclosure or use of list of names of persons receiving compensation.

It was learned that Republican leaders in various parts of the state have reported to state officials that old age pensioners are receiving political letters from various sources, and that indications were the names and addresses came from official lists.

Former Gov. Martin L. Davey, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, has written several letters aimed at old age pensioners, but it was not known whether they were sent directly to recipients.

Democratic State Chairman J. Freer Bittinger, before leaving for New York to confer with National Chairman Flynn, said he saw no reason why a politician could not write to persons whether they received pensions or not. He said Davey has "many lists of names."

What is worrying state officials, it was learned, is the fact that the federal social security board may withhold funds in the event of proof that addresses used for political purposes came from official lists, no matter how they were obtained.

During the administration of Davey, the social security board withheld $1,300,000 in Ohio funds because of an altercation with state officials. The money was never refunded.

GETS CONTRACT

Westinghouse to Make Gun Equipment for Navy.

The navy department today awarded a $10,865,200 contract for gun equipment to the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, the Associated Press reported today.

The order, placed under a negotiated contract, will not affect the Mansfield plant, nor will any of the work be done here, officials of the Mansfield plant said.

Though no details were revealed, it was believed that the order was for heavy equipment such as gun mountings, and that the contract would be handled at one of the company's eastern plants.

RUNAWAY CASE GETS ODD SLANT

Police Hold Man From Whom Boys Obtained Car; He Files Theft Charge.

While the search for four young Mansfielders, two girls and their boy companions continued today, the case took a queer turn.

Charges of operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent were filed against the two boys by a friend who had given them permission to use his car. Meanwhile, however, the owner was held in jail for what police said was "investigation" concerning the four runaways.

The youths, all missing since Tuesday are Rose Fava, 16, of 144 Columbia avenue; her cousin, Rosie Vetrano, 15, or 223 North Franklin avenue; John Bachman, 17, of 188 1/2 North Main street, and Gene Duke, 16, of 85 1/2 Coul street.

Police said they learned from Edward P. Conneff, Oakeswald avenue, that he had given the boys permission to use his automobile with the understanding that they were to return it not later than 8 p. m. Tuesday.

They said Conneff "had information" concerning the whereabouts of the quartet but refused to divulge it to the officers. They locked him up when he refused to disclose information.

TRAIN INMATES

Federal Reformatory Planning School for Mechanics.

CHILLICOTHE, (AP)— Acting Warden Edwin J. Lloyd confirmed today that an army aviation mechanics training school is to be established at the Chillicothe federal reformatory.

Information thus far is meagre, but it was learned that aviation mechanics will be trained from among selected inmates of the institution, the initial class to number about 15 young men.

A new building is under construction to house the school, which will be conducted through cooperation of Wright Field, Dayton. Training will be given on various types of aircraft motors to be furnished by the government along with licensed instructors.

FORTUNE SPENT ANNUALLY FOR FIFTH COLUMN

$200,000,000 for Nazi Work Abroad Brings Profit In Easy Victories.

Editor's Note: This is the fourth of the Fifth Column series released by Secretary of Navy Frank Knox.

By COL. WM. J. DONOVAN and EDGAR MOWBRER.

Since we must ascribe a huge share in Adolf Hitler's incomparable military successes to his use of Germans and "Fifth Columnists" in victim countries, the question arises: How was such a success possible? How are Germans abroad brought to such self-sacrificing enthusiasm for the Nazi regime? How above all can foreigners living under relatively mild and civilized governments be induced voluntarily to betray their own countries for Hitler's Germany? It seems mysterious.

The answer is $200,000,000 spent annually on organization and propaganda abroad. The immensity of this sum is the secret Nazi Germany is not a government—not even a "folkdom" of the sort Nazi orators talk about. Nazi Germany is a conspiracy. Its scope is universal and its aim world domination. Its primary agents are, as many of the millions of Germans in Germany, and abroad, as can be induced or compelled to serve the German Fatherland.

Its activities begin with attempted proselytizing of Germans abroad, go on to the murder and kidnapping of real or fancied enemies, and end in armed insurrection against the foreign country Hitler wishes to conquer or absorb.

Such insurrections of Germans actually occurred in Czechoslovakia, Austria, and Holland. But for the firm attitude of the United States such an insurrection would, many students believe, have occurred in Brazil.

That the Germans abroad are usually "naturalized" into something else is no hindrance. Pre-war imperial Germany sanctioned the "double nationality" status—Germans could, that is, become French or American or Portuguese without losing their German nationality. The Weimar republic did not alter this strange conception and Nazi Germany has made it the center of its "Trojan Horse" tactics of placing Germans within the enemy walls. It is safe to say that a very fair proportion of the non-refugee Germans who have become American since Hitler came to power did so with the secret intention of turning free and Democratic America into "their"—that is, Hitler's—America.

Children of Germans naturalized half a century ago are still counted German by Berlin and every effort is made to convince them of the fact.

Naturally, the Nazis accept traitors as allies wherever they can find them, and welcome the assistance of non-nordics.

But peoples racially akin to Germans—Scandinavians, Dutch, Flemings, German-speaking Swiss, even Anglo-Saxons—are made the object of special proselytizing as belonging to the "same blood." These form the material with which the Nazi world conspiracy chiefly attempts to work.

The center is the Nazi party. The tool is the Auslands-organization of 400,000 members all of whom are conscious agents. Over 600 local groups of "supporting points" are organized in 45 or more "landsgemeinschaften"—one in each country.

The headquarters is in Stuttgart, but all the groups are directed by a single man in Berlin, Gauleiter Ernst Wilhelm Bohle with some 800 assistants. Technically Bohle is a "state secretary" in the German foreign office. Where the local branches dare not appear under their true colors, they take on fancy names—in Rumania the "Iron Guard," in Switzerland "True Confederates," in the United States "Amerika-deutscher Volkshund."

But everywhere, whether the members are Germans, naturalized Germans or non-Germans, the aim is the same: to acquire Hitler's aid by trickery or terror, the organizing principle is the same, with its Hitler youth and Hitler sports, marching emblems, rituals, and discipline ceremonies in honor of Nazi heroes or Hitler's birthday parties; and in case of war they would all be on Germany's side.

In time of peace they make lists of Hitler's enemies, who are marked down for murder or kidnapping to Germany and torture when the great day comes.

Organized Germans abroad are publicly told to "obey the laws of their guest-country" but at the same time urged to "convince every outsider of the necessity of Germany's victory." The Nazi party Auslands-organization is by no means the only entity that works for Hitler outside Germany.

There are in fact no less than seven others. The political police or Gestapo, the propaganda ministry of Dr. Paul Goebbels, the German labor front, the intelligence services of the German army, of the German navy, and of the German air arm, and finally the German foreign office with its embassies and consulates all over the world.

Together these eight organizations spend on propaganda, espionage and sabotage roughly $200,000,000 a year. It seems lot of money but Hitler has publicly expressed his intention of keeping this service at full blast even if it means fewer infantry divisions in the army.

When one considers that this combined service, with its 30,000 employees can probably claim credit for the ease of Hitler's many victories, it is obvious that the same result could hardly be obtained so cheaply in any other way.

The German foreign office thus has two irons in the fire abroad. One are the millions of Germans in Bohle's Auslands-organization. The others are the German diplomats abroad. By noticing that on the whole the German government has four or five times as many "accredited" diplomatic and consular agents in each post as any other country, one can perhaps guess the type of activity of four-fifths of them.

The intelligence services of the German army, navy and air arm are not much different from those in other countries, with the possible exception that the German army maintains, in the Prinz Friedrich Karl Strasse in Berlin a "psychological laboratory."

Here are trained not only the military spies but the Gestapo and party agents especially designated for service abroad.

Members of the German labor front who go abroad to work have the duty of reporting anything of interest they may see or learn in foreign ships, shops, factories or other places. Furthermore since 1936 there exists in Hamburg an "international central office" where Germans and Italians work together against trade unions, particularly in Democratic countries and support any movement against organized labor.

Particularly important, notably in countries like the third French republic is the work of the press attaches in the German embassies and consulates. Not only do they see that the 1,700 German language newspapers outside Germany are supplied with interesting material of all sorts at the price no other source can meet, but they also watch over German radio programs. Special attention is given to winning over possible Nazi friends on the local press and combating or bringing into disrepute newspapers and periodicals that oppose Hitler.

The German Gestapo of Heinrich Himmler whose ruthless efficiency surpasses even the Russian OGPU, employs only about 5,000 agents abroad.

One of its special tasks is watching over German refugee emigrants, but it does not scorn to cast an eye even on Nazis in good standing, some of whom have been known to speak slightly of the Fuehrer or to express wish for greater personal freedom.

In addition to the agencies already mentioned there exists a colonial political department headed by General Franz Ritter von Epp Hitler's special friend, which carries on a lively pro-Nazi propaganda in the former German colonies.

Britons Flock to Beaches Despite Bombers

British Sunday vacationers continue their week-end treks to the beaches despite the constant threat of German bombing planes.

ones and among Germans in colonies of other countries.

Although there is some doubt presumably it is the Gestapo that picks out special agents for particular jobs in countries that happen at a particular moment to interest the Nazis most.

There is no claim that this description of the German propaganda service is complete. Conceivably there exist other even more interesting services. But this much should make it clear why Adolf Hitler has been so successful in utilizing Germans abroad and creating "fifth columns" among his enemies.

It must always be remembered that no German receives police permission to leave the Reich, regardless of the motives, until he or she promises to report everything seen and heard abroad. Each must declare his address to the nearest Nazi official and keep in touch with him so far as circumstances permit.

In the United States an organization of Nazis is being trained in arms. As matters stand, it is conceivable that the United States possesses the finest Nazi schooled "fifth column" in the world, one which in case of war with Germany could be our undoing.

Could that need not be the Nazis are young and energetic, unopposed. Where they are resisted, where the initiative is taken from them, they tend to collapse.

It is hard to see why under present circumstances in view of "fifth column activity" observed abroad, countries that do not intend to submit to the Third Reich permit any German-language publications or why they do not adopt legislation allowing naturalizations obtained under false pretenses to be annulled by executive act, or do not insist on knowing just which domestic industries and commercial houses have tie-ups of any sort with the Nazis.

Failure to do this, failure to study and combat the entire Nazi Auslands-organization, may have tragic consequences. Unearthed in time, the Nazi conspiracy is relatively harmless.

FRIENDLY HOUSE HITS NEW HIGH

Summer Activities Bring Out More Children, Approach Best Winter Marks.

With registrations reaching the 350 mark this month, Russell Gimbel, Friendly House director, announced today that the settlement had had the busiest summer in its history.

Gimbel said that July attendance at the settlement has been as large as some of the winter months, usually the busiest of the year.

The Friendly House director attributed the increase to added activity on the part of the supervisors in charge of the various activities and the organization of two new baseball leagues during the summer. More than 100 boys participated in the Knott-hole baseball league games, he said.

Gimbel also announced that the Friendly House fall and winter program would get under way Sept. 1 with registration taking place the last two weeks. There will be no registration fee.

Clubs and classes will begin Sept. 15 and kindergarten for preschool youngsters will get under way the following day. Miss Dorothy Corrigan of Cleveland, will be the new kindergarten teacher and young girls' supervisor, Gimbel said.

CHILDREN ON REFUGEE SHIP CHEER STATUE

'Liberty' Looks Good to War-Fleeing Youngsters Who Describe Air Raids.

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK—The weather-beaten, black and buff British liner Samaria docked yesterday bringing to safety from bombardment the first group of children transported through the collective efforts of Americans.

The young war refugees crowded the Samara's rails—210 of them of all sizes, dressed in all kinds of clothing—and cheered lustily when they saw the statue of Liberty in the sunny haze.

Then, a bit anxiously, their eyes searched the docks for a first glimpse of the people who are giving them homes "for the duration."

From all strata of British society, they had one possession in common: A knapsack containing small belongings. Most of the girls had a doll, and many of the boys had school caps which they swung in wild excitement.

They talked on arriving about air raids they'd been through, and bombs they'd seen fall, and Donald Miller, a six-year-old in Scottish kilts, said, "I'm glad to be here, but I miss my daddy."

One hundred thirty-eight of the children were brought through efforts of the United States committee for the care of European children, and were met down the bay by Marshall Field, head of the committee.

He had made three trips to the battery and waited three days for the arrival of the ship, which left Liverpool Aug. 9 and traversed the Atlantic, conveyed until last Monday by the British battleship Revenge and three destroyers.

Eighty-four were from homes of workmen in the Hoover Co. Ltd. plant at Perivale, England, a London suburb, traveling to homes of employees of the Hoover Suction Sweeper Co., of North Canton, O.

Fifty were brought under sponsorship of the Boston Transcript. All seemed confident England would win the war.

"Hitler can't get to England," said David Courtenay, 15, of Sussex, one of the group going to Boston. "You should see our defenses."

He had seen a bomb fall 200 yards away from him, killing five persons.

Peter Saundby, 13, on his way to Canton with his two brothers, Barry, 9, and Robert, 8, said, "the people in dad's firm sometimes shout, 'Are we down-hearted?' No!"

"We're very glad to be here and we know we're going to good homes," he added, "but we'll miss England."

The night before they left Liverpool, the children were in an air raid scare and taken to a shelter near the docks.

"At my home, we usually have a cup of tea after air raids," said Ronald Gollop, 13, who was going to Canton.

Eleven volunteer "shipboard mothers"—British women who will shuttle across the Atlantic in the coming weeks with groups of children—supervised the 210, with additional volunteer aid of the 477 adult passengers.

GOLD FOUND

Rich Vein Reported in China By Conquering Japs.

SHANGHAI—(AP)—Extensive activity is reported in Nanking, capital city of Japanese-occupied China, as exploitation of a rich gold vein recently found in the Purple Mountains gets underway.

The vein, parts of which virtually were exposed at the peaks of the mountains under only a thin coating of sand and gravel, was discovered by Sakai Sonobe, a Japanese employee of the reorganized National Government.

Japanese military leaders in China have high hopes that the find will prove exceedingly valuable to them, it is reported.

The newly-established Central China Mining Company, backed by the Japanese, has been investigating the total amount of gold deposits at the request of the Asia Development Board and laboratory, other Nippon enterprises.

While engineers surveyed the site and planned methods of working the deposit, experiments were being conducted with the gold ore found on Purple Mountain. Purple Mountain also is famous as the site of the Sun Yat-sen mausoleum.

Taxes Cause Penny Shortage; Mints Busy Making More

Emergency defense taxes and upsurge in the popularity of slot and pin ball machines are believed to have caused the sudden shortage in small coins, especially pennies. Running very low in

EXTRA COUNCIL SESSION NEARS

Solons to Take Up Left-Over Business From Regular August Meeting.

A special meeting of city council will be called late this week or the first of next week, Mayor W. J. Locke said today.

At the last regular session, city fathers didn't get around to all of the legislative matters scheduled to come before them and it was agreed that a special session would be necessary before the next regular meeting Sept. 3.

Locke said upcoming legislation provides for closing two street ends, Wayne and East Third, which are involved in the new Westinghouse expansion program. The streets will be laid out in new locations and paved at the expense of the Westinghouse, Locke said.

Another issue which councilmen want to discuss before the regular meeting is the one-mill levy which they hope to submit to the voters at the November election. This levy would provide funds for additional police and firemen, as well as for recreation supervision, playgrounds and parks.

Several other matters may be discussed, Locke said, in order to lighten the schedule for the September session.

Corpse Crashes Toll-Gate, Then Returns to Life

SEATTLE, Wash.—(AP)—Page One-Eyed Connolly to hear about the exploit of John Nacey, who wanted to "crash" the Lake Washington bridge toll-gate.

An automobile approached the toll-gate, with Nacey "playing dead" on a stretcher in the vehicle.

"We don't have to pay for the corpse, do we?" asked the driver. "He's on his way to a funeral home."

Started the attendant waved the "funeral party" through the gate. A safe distance from the gate, the "corpse" sat up.

ARMORED DIVISION FROM KNOX COMES HERE SEEKING RECRUITS

A recruiting party from the First Armored Division, Fort Knox, will be in Mansfield from tomorrow morning until Sunday afternoon, according to a notice received by Mayor W. J. Locke. The party will be stationed at the postoffice and will accept enlistments for the first armored division ever recruited in the United States.

The division, when fully organized will have approximately 9,000 officers and men and 2,200 armored vehicles, such as light and medium tanks, combat cars, scout cars, personnel carriers, trucks and motorcycles. None of the men in the division will be foot soldiers. It will be a fast-moving division equipped with high-powered weapons.

Men with some training in certain vocations are especially desired, such as mechanics, dental, medical and surgical technicians, electricians, clerks and typists, drivers, welders and others.

No man who is over 35 years of age, has dependents or who is not a citizen of the United States, will be accepted for an original enlistment. Boys under 18 are not acceptable.

CALL FOR BIDS ON DOG POUND

Commissioners Take Steps on Project; Readvertise Elevator Offer.

Richland county commissioners today asked for bids on the construction of a new dog pound and made a second request for bids on an elevator at the courthouse.

An oversight in a legal advertisement for the elevator construction bids will delay awarding of the contract from Sept. 4 to Sept. 20, commissioners said. The dog pound bids will be opened the same day.

A previous advertisement failed to guarantee that wages to be paid on the project will be in accordance with the scale set up by the Ohio department of industrial relations.

Representatives of the Mansfield Building Trades council called the county officials' attention to the oversight, and a new request for bids was prepared. The letting must be advertised 30 days in advance.

Cost of the elevator was estimated at $15,000 and the dog pound at $1,500.

LAST NIGHT 16 friends of Miss Dorothy Stephenson learned of her approaching marriage to Walter M. Rose, Wooster. The announcement was made at a party given by her mother, Mrs. Robert W. Stephenson at their home, 140 West Dickson avenue. The quiet wedding will be an event of Sept. 17 at 9:30 a. m. at the First Presbyterian church. Rev. David N. Roller will officiate.

Home Ceremony Read for Couple; Leave for Canada

A home ceremony was performed at 7:30 p. m. last night by Rev. J. E. Marshall to unite in marriage Miss Lottie Louise Cairns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cairns, near Shelby, and Edward Hoover, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hoover, R. D. 2, Mansfield.

The informal ceremony was read before an improvised altar made of garden flowers against a bayed window alcove in the living room. A dinner for members of the immediate families followed. A wedding cake and garden flowers decorated the table.

Mrs. Hoover has been employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, while Mr. Hoover is employed at Bellville by the Carnation Milk company. The couple left for a Canadian trip last night. Upon their return they will be at home with the bridegroom's parents.

Take Care In Applying Make-Up

There's beauty gold in them that jars and bottles in your beauty kit, dear lady. There's magic, too, which turns a pale face faintly rosy, puts the gardenia velvety on the complexion, brings pretty coloring to the lips. That is, if you are keen of eye, steady of hand and know precisely what you are about. There's much to be learned about make-up technique. It's an art.

Alas, all the little dearhearts aren't artists. These are the lassies who cause the quaint, dear old dodos to lift their eyebrows almost out of joint, raise their hands in holy horror. Things weren't like that when they were young! It is to laugh. The smarties among even the oldest are plying their lipstick and laying on the synthetic blush. They use discretion. It is the wild young thing, or the faded woman who doesn't care how much she trowels on the paint who makes cosmetic mistakes.

The smart girl is subtle; she is slick. She manipulates artifice so that it passes for natural effects. She prefers to have people believe she was born that way. The rouge compact is used sparingly. Lipstick films the rosy flesh, isn't plastered on, and the outline is so perfectly marked that the vermilion cream does not extend over the white skin and give her away. Not that make-up isn't respectable. It is. But that a little make-up gives freshness to the face, lights the eyes, makes the portrait more vivid, and so serves the purpose for which it was intended.

Miss Smartly conditions her complexion before she makes a new face. She may use a foundation cosmetic or her favorite cold cream or even have the cutaneous surface with witch hazel, which is refreshing. She believes that it is better to add than subtract, so puts on powder a little at a time.

She plays up her eyes, placing rouge high, sweeping the compact over her eyelids. She is fussy about her mirror. If there is a light only on one side, her blushes may not match. She prefers a dressing table with an overhead light falling directly upon her.

She knows that a heavy smear of crimson on her lips takes attention away from eyes and hair, so she soft pedals. She includes the inner surfaces of the lips when she tints her mouth portals. There she is! Sweet as peaches.

High Style Fashions, Fancy Work

By MARIAN MARTIN

Of course you want your "kitchen-duty" costume simple to make. But it can be as pretty as the one in this pattern. See the well-fitting front lines, with the smartly curved side bodice sections that form one piece with the shoulders. In back the shoulder straps are joined together to stay up. Best news of all, the front and back are cut in just THREE PIECES each, excluding the sash and the optional pockets. Take your choice of two gay versions: one with contrast and pretty ruffling or tie-back; the other with a colorful, easy flower applique.

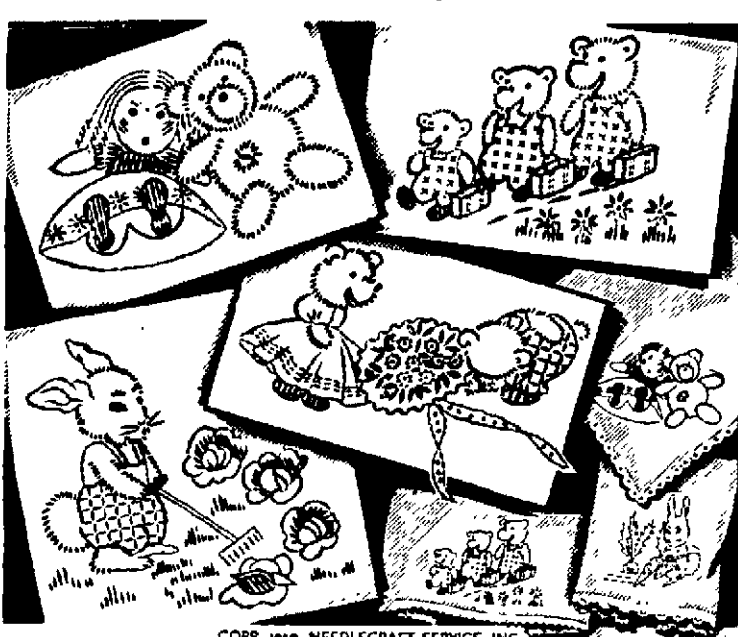

Pattern 9326 may be ordered only in sizes small, medium and large. Small size, view A, requires 1 1/2 yards 35 inch fabric and 3/4 yard contrast; view B, 2 1/2 yards 35 inch.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number. Send your order to The Mansfield News-Journal, Pattern Department, 232 W. 18th St., New York, N. Y.

Initiative and aggressiveness are bound to attract supporting capital for development. There is need of precaution in dealing with large organizations or groups. Friendship of elders and females is desirable.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a year of great progress with substantial evidence of esteem and preferment from those in places of authority. It would be well to cultivate these for the purpose of promoting very practical and meritorious propositions, which will bear the test of sound performance. New ideas and innovations are assured welcome support from employers, superiors and working capital, but be a bit wary with unproved co-operators who may be imbued with self-interest rather than honest collaboration. Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

KATHERINE opened her lips to speak at Katie's message, then determinedly closed them again.

I knew that her first impulse had been to offer to take for me the message of the headmaster of the preparatory school which Bill and Hank, Mary's brothers, were attending.

But I was conscious of her anxious eyes following me as I walked slowly to the telephone, and knew that she comprehended and shared the quaking fear that was mine. For she had been with me through the days of dread that had come to us at the close of the vacation, just before the boys were to return to school, when we had realized that Hank alone, of the four orphaned children of Dickey's sister, Elizabeth Harrison, had inherited the secret propensity for cruelty which had shadowed her life, and those of her husband and her children.

That shadow had gone beyond the grave, for though her three older children—Roderick was too young to realize his loss—mourned their father bitterly, the other three, as I well knew, watching them, had to make a pretense of grief for their mother—surely one of the most poignant tragedies which could come to children.

I had been lulled into security by the long period of happy normalcy which had followed, first in the care of their mother's sister, Harriet Braithwaite, and then in Dicky's and mine.

Then had come this disquieting knowledge of Hank, a condition with which neither Dicky nor I could adequately have coped without Katherine.

She it had been, through her wide knowledge of physicians, who had arranged the hurried visit of Hank to a nerve specialist, verdict that Hank was far from a hopeless case, that we had taken the matter in time, and that it was safe for the boy to go back to preparatory school, with his older brother Bill to keep an unobtrusive but watchful eye on him. And Hank himself, though the specialist had glossed things over to the boy, had displayed an involuntary horror of himself during the unexpected torture scene in a movie of India that we had seen, which I had considered most salutary for him.

I realized now that I had rested too confidently upon the specialist's verdict, and upon Hank's reaction to the movie. There had been so much else upon my heart and brain that I hardly had thought of the boys since their departure for school. But now all my fears were alive again, and it cost a distinct effort to take up the receiver and say quietly, "Mrs. Graham speaking."

"Good afternoon, Mrs. Graham," the headmaster greeted me. "This is Doctor Ward speaking. Is Mr. Graham there?"

I knew that Dicky should not take a minute from the work outside scheduled by my father, and that I knew even more than he did about Hank's problems—so I hedged.

"He is not here now, no."

"Do you expect him soon?"

"Not for another hour," I salvaged my conscience with the far-fetched excuse that Dicky would not be inside the house for another hour.

"Then I must give you my message." The reluctance of a man to discuss unpleasant things with a woman was in his voice. "We must send you a nephew, home immediately, upon the next train, if possible. I trust you will be able to work out details of meeting them."

Ohio Given Important Part In National Defense Plan

PLANE PLANT TO BE BUILT
AT COLUMBUSHuge Airplane Engine Factory at Cincinnati Included In Federal Project.

(By International News Service)
Ohio's participation in the national defense program will bring a $4,000,000 airplane manufacturing plant to Columbus, as well as a huge airplane engine plant to Lockland, a Cincinnati suburb, it was disclosed today.

Preliminary plans previously were announced in Washington for a $6,000,000 ammunition-loading plant in the vicinity of Ravenna, near Akron.

Production of synthetic rubber will be speeded up to 10,000 pounds a day at the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. plant in Akron. President Paul Litchfield revealed.

Petroleum is the chief ingredient in the substitute, which while more expensive than crude rubber, is said to be equally durable. Facilities for its manufacture are to be expanded to facilitate emergency production.

Disclosure that Columbus was in line for an airplane factory, to be built at Port Columbus on land leased by the city for a nominal sum, came with Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones' announcement of a $34,000,000 federal loan to the Curtiss-Wright Corp. Other plants will be built in Buffalo, N. Y., and St. Louis, Mo.

Roger Addison, president of Columbus city council, pledging full cooperation of the city, declared that 3500 workers would be employed at first with the number increasing later to 15,000.

The site tentatively agreed upon covers 85 acres in the southwest section of Port Columbus. Options already have been obtained on a 200-acre Lockland tract, the Wright Aeronautical Corp. announced, and construction was expected to be started within a few weeks. Plans call for employing 12,000 to 15,000 workers in the manufacture of airplane engines.

Famous Attorney
Dies Preparing
Schenk Defense

NEW YORK (AP)—The brilliant career of Max D. Steuer, 70, generally regarded as one of the nation's shrewdest lawyers and a master at courtroom strategy, was ended today in death.

Steuer died of a heart attack in a hotel at Jackson, N. H., where he was working on the defense of Joseph M. Schenck, the film magnate recently indicted on a charge of income tax evasion.

Like many another famous personage, Steuer got his start on New York's lower east side, to which his impoverished parents migrated from Austria. He started as a newsboy and an apprentice in a tailor shop. At the peak of his career he received a fee that amounted to $500 for each minute he spent in the courtroom and in the 10 busiest years of his life was estimated to have received a gross of $10,000,000 in fees. Of late, he had been devoting himself to his philanthropies.

Willkie Attempts to Crack 'Solid South'

DAILY SCRAPBOOK—

By R. J. Scott

Up and Down
THE STREET

If there's anyone in Mansfield who has one of those old swivel-type piano stools around the attic gathering dust he can get rid of it and be sure that it will be used for some practical purpose. Mrs. H. C. Brokaw, board member of the Richland county Tuberculosis association said today. The board needs a couple of the stools at the Richland county Tuberculosis sanatorium and they'll be glad to call for them if the owners will telephone Mrs. Margaret Adams, county nurse, at the city health department, Canal 3207.

When Jesse Beer, senior high school principal, was fishing in Canadian waters recently, he had one of those experiences that you read about but seldom see. He hooked a bass weighing about three pounds and the fish ran under the boat, made a terrific lunge to free itself, broke the leader, and landed in the boat on the opposite side from which Beer was fishing. The bass landed at the feet of 'Merle Pecht and just back of Mayor W. J. Locke. It still had Beer's hook in its mouth.

If Mansfielders think it is cold here, they ought to be with Floyd Dent and his crew of 15 boy scouts who are touring Canada this week. In a post card to a friend, Dent wrote: "There was really 'frost on the pumpkin' at Mt. Carroll last morning." Dent also reported that Bob Burns, one of the scouts, caught the first fish, under the expert tutelage of Louis Ott, sr., whom Dent described as the "Chief Fisherman." Lake Carroll is about 25 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie.

A Mansfield woman and her daughter were pretty confused for a while yesterday about the exact age of the daughter until the veteran physician who attended the birth set them straight. In probate court where the mother and daughter sought information from the birth records, they were unable to agree on the date of the daughter's birth. The mother said she thought it was in 1897. The daughter held out for a year later, making her a year younger.

A call to the doctor proved the 1898 date correct. "I ought to remember that one," he said. "It was the first birth I attended when I started practicing."

REJECT OFFER
India Nationalist Congress Turns Down 'Equality.'

WARDHA, India (AP)—The working committee of the all-India National Congress, ending a five-day session, passed a resolution today rejecting the latest British offer of ultimate self-rule for India.

It urged Indians to condemn the attitude of the British government in public protest meetings. Britain, in an offer Aug. 8, promised India "free and equal partnership" in the British commonwealth after the war.

FLIES EAST TO CONFERENCE ON
CAMPAIGN PLANAnti-Roosevelt Democrats and Republican Leaders To Discuss Strategy.

(By United Press)
NEW YORK—Republican Presidential Nominee Wendell L. Willkie today summoned Republican and anti-Roosevelt Democratic leaders to discuss selecting "national unity" Democratic electors, pledged to him, in an effort to crack the Democratic "solid south."

Flying from his temporary campaign residence at Rushville, Ind., Willkie indicated to reporters that the strategy of seeking inroads in the south was among the most important unsettled campaign questions, which will be discussed here at a series of conferences lasting until Monday or Tuesday.

Two one time Roosevelt appointees—former Undersecretary of the Treasury John W. Hanes and former Budget Director Lewis W. Douglas—will meet with Willkie tonight to iron out ways of bringing Democrats opposed to Mr. Roosevelt on policy questions and the third term issue into the active movement for Willkie.

Gov. Arthur H. James of Pennsylvania will be a luncheon guest. Rep. Joseph W. Martin, jr., Mass., chairman of the Republican national committee, will be consulted about southern strategy and other campaign matters, including closer coordination of the Republican, anti-Roosevelt and independent voter movements.

The proposed special state strategy in the south is based on a feeling that the traditional antipathy of southerners to Republicans might be dissipated in part by offering them a chance to vote for former Democrat Willkie in some other way than marking an "X" in the Republican column.

Willkie is discussed campaign plans with newspapermen flying 7,000 feet above Ohio at 250 miles per hour in a "stratoliner" last night.

Before leaving Indiana, he announced that Mrs. Willkie was house-hunting in Rushville and that they would take their temporary residence there rather than in their New York apartment because the Indiana farm town makes him "feel so much at home" and also because it is so centrally located it is an extremely convenient place from which to operate.

Willkie will stay in Rushville with possible brief side trips to Maine, Minnesota or a northern Indiana lake—from next week until about Sept. 4 when he formally opens the campaign at Coffeyville, Kas. A tour to the Pacific coast and northwestern United States will follow, and he will go to Detroit about Sept. 30 for an address before the National Federation of Women's Republican clubs.

TWO MORE DIE
Infantile Paralysis Takes 10 Victims in Ohio.

COLUMBUS (AP)—Two additional deaths from infantile paralysis were recorded in Ohio today, bringing the total number of deaths from the disease this year to five.

Lawrence county had its first death from the disease when James Whitaker, 18, Cincinnati high school senior, died in Ironton, Joseph Kuzmarz, 16, New Philadelphia, another fatality victim, was believed to have been the only victim in Tuscarawas county thus far.

Fifteen new cases were reported throughout Ohio, State Health Director R. H. Markwith said there had been 90 cases in the state since June 14 but that the disease had not reached epidemic proportions. Eleven counties have reported presence of the disease.

The other day, while fishing near the same pier, Kropp hooked a 12-inch bass in whose mouth was the lost tackle.

You Can't Print That!

(This is a compendium of tales that can't be told with names, because they're too true to print. If there is in them any resemblance to actual characters, living or dead—you've probably guessed right!)

Genevieve X, is the pretty little goldlocks who started out the social season with a bang, headed—in the headlines at least—to be the debutante of the year. For a while she got so much publicity that the other contenders were jealous of her, and the current glamor girls regarded her with icy eyes.

At the start of this furor, Paul Z., a nice boy who'd adored her since she was in pinafores, asked Genevieve to marry him. But she turned him down, because marriage didn't look enticing in competition with the exciting social career that was shaping up. And for a while you saw her pictures in the papers as often as any movie star's, and you kept reading that Genevieve was Here With This One and There With Someone Else. You would have bet money that she'd wind up No. 1 Debut.

But something happened. For one thing, the incumbent No. 1 Debut stayed the No. 1 Debut, and No. 2 Debut is like the No. 2 winner in the Kentucky Derby.

Then, too, if any important invitations came Genevieve's way, socially, she was a dud. And her family hasn't enough money to give her a knockout debut party for the edification of the society pages. It's all pretty depressing.

That's why, when Paul asked her to marry him, Genevieve said yes! But you can't print that. The poor fellow thinks it's love.

Joe J. is one of the nation's favorite sports figures. Some years ago, when he was a genuinely happy fellow there were just two persons in the world he really cared about—his wife and his best friend. Joe's work took him all over the country, but no matter how far he went, his heart was here in Manhattan with the Little Woman, and he never could get home fast enough.

His wife was pretty and vivacious, and plenty of the lads around here were inclined to give her the interested eye, but Joe never worried. Every time he left town, he'd say to his old, whose name was Bob: "You take her around, and keep an eye on her. See that she has a good time, and keep those wolves away."

He'd always wink when he said it, because Joe knew down deep in his heart that his wife loved him and any wolf leaping into sight would get brushed off by Little Red Riding Hood.

One day he got home from a long trip and as he came through the front door his wife and his best pal were there to meet him. But his wife's first words froze his delight into shock.

"There isn't any room in this house for you," she said. "I want a divorce—so Bob and I can get married!"

But you can't print that. He puts up such a show of being gay, and he deserves to fool the public. But she's so mean—why give her the satisfaction of knowing he's still in love with her?

Of all the beaux who ever hit the town—of all the dream princes who ever hit the headlines, Larry L. probably had the most adoring among the long-cyclad brigade.

Millions sent him fan mail, and hundreds who were able to get closer got in his hair and in his lap.

Chatter Corner
Just rattings about people you know, as they've seen here and there about town.

SCOTT COFFIN, zipper case under his arm, hurrying around the Walnut-West Fourth street corner... Vaughn Bates (dates on Fourth) watching the progress of the concrete work in front of his store... Roscoe Wagner negotiating her lunch in an effort to finish a school-day.

Madge (Dates on Fourth) Correll inspecting Westinghouse exhibit at New York World fair and running across four Mansfield girls... Elsie Franks says "Hello" W. L. (Schools) Miller quietly observing his birthday anniversary and amazed at their frequency.

Harriet Stearn, Western avenue, and Margaret Beck, West Fourth street, leaving for a nine-day vacation in Georgian bay. They will make their headquarters at Coppecked island, cruising among the islands of the bay and stopping at Toronto.

Miss Mabel Bennett, 41 Douglas avenue, taking advantage of her Westinghouse vacation to make a flying trip—but on the train—to San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Mary Newcomer and John F. Correll headed for Carey to attend a Young Democratic rally and planning to get to rallies in Mt. Vernon and Millersburg the next night... Lawyer Joe Ellison pacing the courthouse corridors, nervously awaiting the jury's verdict in his first criminal case.

Margaret Strickland and Betty Thompson walking out Park avenue west together... Herman Green dodging cars while crossing Mulberry street near Park avenue... Merz Pecht, who works at the postoffice, making his daily tour of inspection of the Fourth street paving project.

Back on home for a five-week vacation after attending summer classes at the University of Michigan.

Indians Invade Gotham; Tigers Continue Nose Dive

Yanks Win Again

Detroit Drops Sixth Game in a Row; Cincinnati Also Loses.

By BILL WHITE.
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)
THIS major league baseball roundup could very well be turned over to the drama department.

Take the National league. In three of the four games yesterday a general-unsung hero came through. Or the minor circuit where top dramatic achievements were turned in by two winning pitchers, and where a villain of deepest dye was uncovered.

The National league's most exciting moments were these:

In Cincinnati the New York Giants had Mickey Vitek to thank for their 5-4 victory over the Reds. In the 17th inning with Capt. Mel Ott on base, Vitek drove out a sharp single to win the game.

In Chicago, Charles Froy, pinch-hitting and by trade a righthanded pitcher, slapped out a 10th-inning home run with a mate on base to give the Phillies a 7-5 win over the Chicago Cubs. Zozo Bonura had tied the game with a ninth-inning homer.

At Pittsburgh, young Vince DiMaggio doubled in the eighth inning to send teammate Arky Vaughan home from first base, and that gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 2-2 second-straight victory over the Boston Bees. Young Ken Hentzelmann scattered eight Boston hits.

There was plenty of action in the 7-5 victory, the St. Louis Cardinals managed over the Brooklyn Dodgers. The Cards brook five of their six hits with three walks and a stolen base to score six times in the fifth inning. Dixie Walker homered in the seventh with one on base.

Dutch Leonard headed the American league's parade of leading men with a smartly-pitched eight-inning that gave him his 13th victory and snapped the Senators' losing streak at five straight. His victims were the St. Louis Browns, and the score was 3-0.

Bill Beckman did a nice pitching job for the Athletics limiting the White Sox to five hits and blanking them 3-0. He didn't let a Sox runner past first.

The "villain" of Detroit was Al Denton, fourth Tiger hurler to face the New York Yankees. In the ninth, with one out and the bases full he walked Bill Dickey on four pitched balls—forcing home the run that gave the Yanks a 6-5 decision.

Boston's battered Red Sox took a double loss, losing a game to the league-leading Cleveland Indians, 4-2, and losing Third-Baseman Jim Tabor for the season. Jim underwent an appendectomy after collapsing on the playing field.

Soose Scores Upset Victory

Defeats Tony Zale in Bout in Chicago Ring.

CHICAGO (AP)—A 23-year-old former Penn State college boxer has conquered both claimants to the title within a month yet does not have the title itself.

Last night Soose, a former Penn State college boxer, has conquered both claimants to the title within a month yet does not have the title itself.

A month ago Soose whipped Ken Overlin, recognized as champion by the states of New York and California. Both bouts were fought over the 140-pound limit of the pound, the significant bar which prevented the championship from passing into the eastern contender's hands. Soose scored 162 and Zale 161.

Pro Football Squad Largest

Rams Have Two Full Teams Ready to Take Field.

CLEVELAND (AP)—If whipping a football team into playing shape in one week is a record, the Cleveland Rams claim it today.

The national professional football league squad even has a second string lined up and Coach Dutch Clark is visibly elated.

Eleven starters from the 1939 season could go into a game today, every one in his regular position, and thoughts of his backfield give Clark considerable confidence. "Last year we never could count on more than five backfield men," he said. "But this time we have at least seven. At fullback we have Tom Drake and Gaylon Smith; we will be as good as any team in the league."

That's saving a lot for Clark. And then he has the league's designated "most valuable player" in Parker Hall—the champion punter—out at fullback, and Paul McDonough at right half.

Clark's confidence is well founded. The Rams' backfield is one of the best in the league.

Tribe Adds to Lead

Cleveland Thumps Boston, 4-2, to Take Five and a Half Game Lead.

NEW YORK (AP)—Confident their widening margin means they are certain to take their first American league flag in 20 years, the Cleveland Indians came here today to open a three-game series with the always-formidable Yankees.

Nobody was making any public pennant predictions, but an undercurrent of confidence ran through the Tribesmen after yesterday's 4 to 2 victory over Boston which, coupled with the Detroit Tigers' sixth straight defeat, hiked the Cleveland lead to five and a half games.

Manager Oscar Vitt nominated Al Milner to pitch against another southpaw, Marius Russo, in the series opener.

Vitt, back in the dugout after being chased yesterday by Umpire George Moriarty, planned to send Al Smith against New York tomorrow and wind up Saturday with his ace, Bob Feller.

Yesterday's triumph gave Cleveland the Red Sox series, 2 to 1, and was due to the veteran Mel Harder's courageous and skilful pitching in the pinches, plus Ray Mack's two-run homer.

The Red Sox made 14 hits, twice as many as the Indians. The Indians' hits were off Lefty Fritz Ostermueller and his ninth-inning successor, young Bill Fleming.

Three double plays helped Harder as he chalked up his eighth victory.

Cleveland Baseball Club Not Charging

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland baseball club isn't accepting money—but don't get excited—they're still charging admission for games but not accepting money for world series tickets.

As application for series tickets continued to pour into the club offices, officials warned that American league rules prevent them from taking money for series tickets until the Indians are mathematically certain of winning the pennant.

Application will bring a letter of instructions and a second letter with money enclosed when the flag race is decided will bring the tickets. Vice President C. C. Slapnicka said nearly 5,000 applications had been received.

Commercial Softball Loop Players Top Lodge Team, 6 to 4.

THE Moose Lodge softball team may be champions of the Y. M. C. A. Commercial league but to the Commercial league All-Stars the team is just another ball club. The All-Stars proved this fact when they edged the Moose team 6 to 4 behind the six-hit pitching of Mike Rachel in the first tilt of a series of five games last night at North Lake park.

Manager Pete Metz of the All-Stars will attempt to make it two in a row over the Moose team by sending Warren Gross or Christian against them in the second tussle of the series at 6 p. m. today at Liberty park. Both teams did all their scoring in three innings. The Moose combine held a 3-0 lead in the first half of the second, but the All-Stars put across two runs in their half of the second and added three more in the fourth to take a lead they never relinquished.

The All-Stars added another run, their sixth, in the sixth inning, and the Moose combine pushed another run across the plate in the eighth frame. Rachel working on the mound for the All-Stars, gave up six hits, struck out two and walked nine, while Brown, the Moose twirler, gave up eight hits, struck out four and walked one.

Six of the All-Stars' eight hits were smacked out by Shaffer, Glorioso and Karsmizki, with Glorioso getting two doubles in three trips to the plate, and Shaffer a double and a single and Karsmizki two singles in three attempts. Musile and Parr also hit safely for the winners, Parr getting a double and Musile a single.

Lanning and Lapey each collected two hits apiece for the losers. Both hit a double and a single. Schmidt and Lerner also hit safely. Lerner getting a double. Moose (6) All Stars (4)
